"Thy Praise We'll Ever Sing"

ALMA MATER

Haverford High, thy praise we'll ever sing,
 Long shall thy fame in florid accents ring.
 Pinioned in splendor may our banners soar,
 Crimson and Gold triumphant evermore.

Soon, all too soon, our school-day joys are gone.
 Then, with the radiance of the breaking dawn,
 Ascends our love in loyalty to thee,
 And mem'ry holds us close eternally.

Students arise, shout now with wild acclaim,
 Join in the song to Alma Mater's name.
 Let not one foe among her ranks be known,
 Fealty and love will ever bring us home.

Dear Donna,
Best of Luck in the future. And I hope that nothing else will happen to your house or family again.
I have a great summer to be good.

Marching Along Together

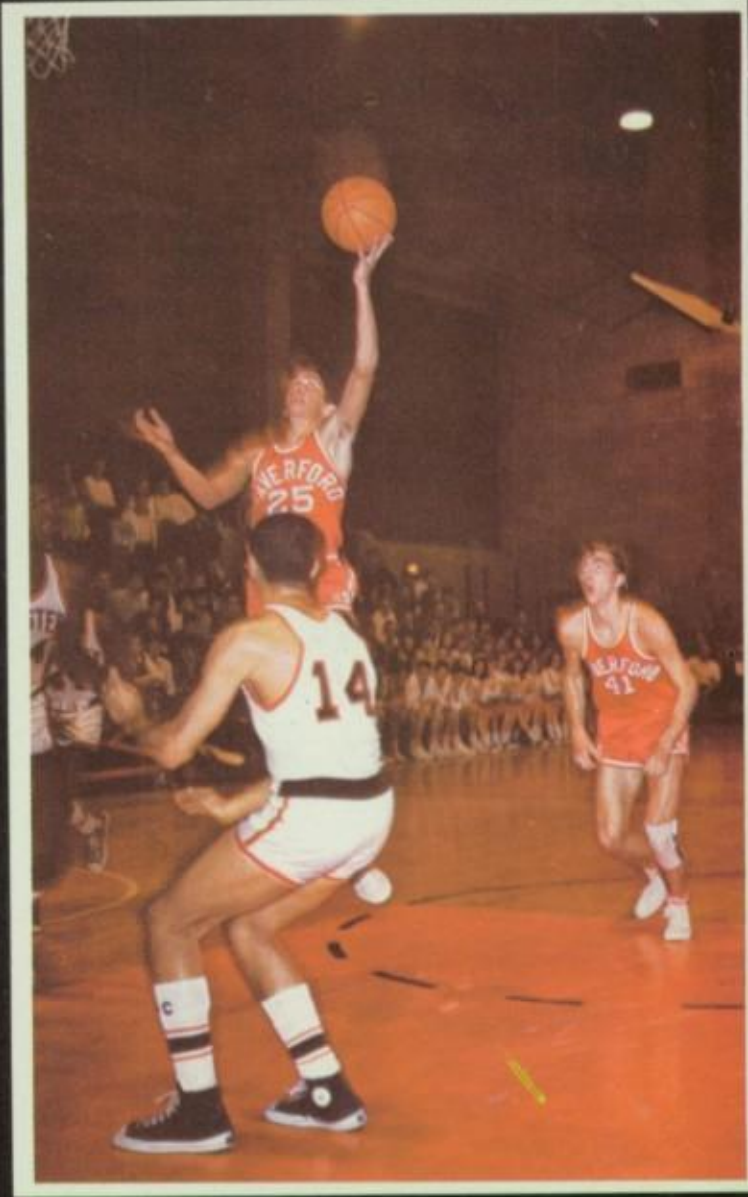

Triumphant Fall Sports Season Sets

FOREWORD

During this exciting year of transition and experimentation, each class realized itself as a unique group and enjoyed unprecedented independence in planning class activities. On the playing fields different uniforms enhanced the marching band's "new look," and a suburban co-championship in football ushered in a year of success in sports.

While the school continued to make changes in itself, so did the student experience extensive changes within himself. The sophomore attempted to adjust to this new, energetic environment. Anticipating graduation, the junior pondered the miracle of becoming a senior. And in the third year of transition, the senior, making plans for his future, realized that this world can stop for no one.

ORGANIZATION

CURRICULUM

Under the leadership of a new superintendent, 1967 heralded many changes in administrative personnel and curriculum. Instruction in French IV, economics, and music appreciation was offered for the first time; commercial and college-oriented courses of study effectively prepared pupils for future vocations and further education. Guided by capable administrators and faculty members, students learned to question as well as to answer.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Harry R. Henly acted as a link between the School Board and the individual schools of Haverford Township. The perennial job of perfecting the schools' facilities and teaching staffs confronted him. He based his recommendations for greater efficiency on an analysis compiled by a special evaluating firm. Serving his first year as superintendent, Dr. Henly was impressed by the high caliber of teachers at Haverford and strove to maintain the high standards of instruction in our schools.

SCHOOL BOARD

Equipping and maintaining the ten schools of Haverford Township was the primary job of the School Board. Mr. Leo P. Moran presided over the open monthly meetings of the ten public-spirited members. The Board continually had to solve the problems of expanding facilities and curriculum to meet the needs of the ever-growing student population. Their other major accomplishments this year included a new driver education program during the school term and plans for a community college in Delaware County.

Glenwood Hughes, Secretary.

C. GLENWOOD HUGHES

With regret and good wishes, the Haverford Township School District bids good-by to School Board Secretary Mr. C. Glenwood Hughes. Mr. Hughes has served Haverford as a teacher, administrator, and member of the school board for a total of thirty-nine years. The students of Haverford wish him success in his future endeavors and hope that his experience at Haverford has been rewarding and profitable.

Administrators Promote Student-Faculty Rapport

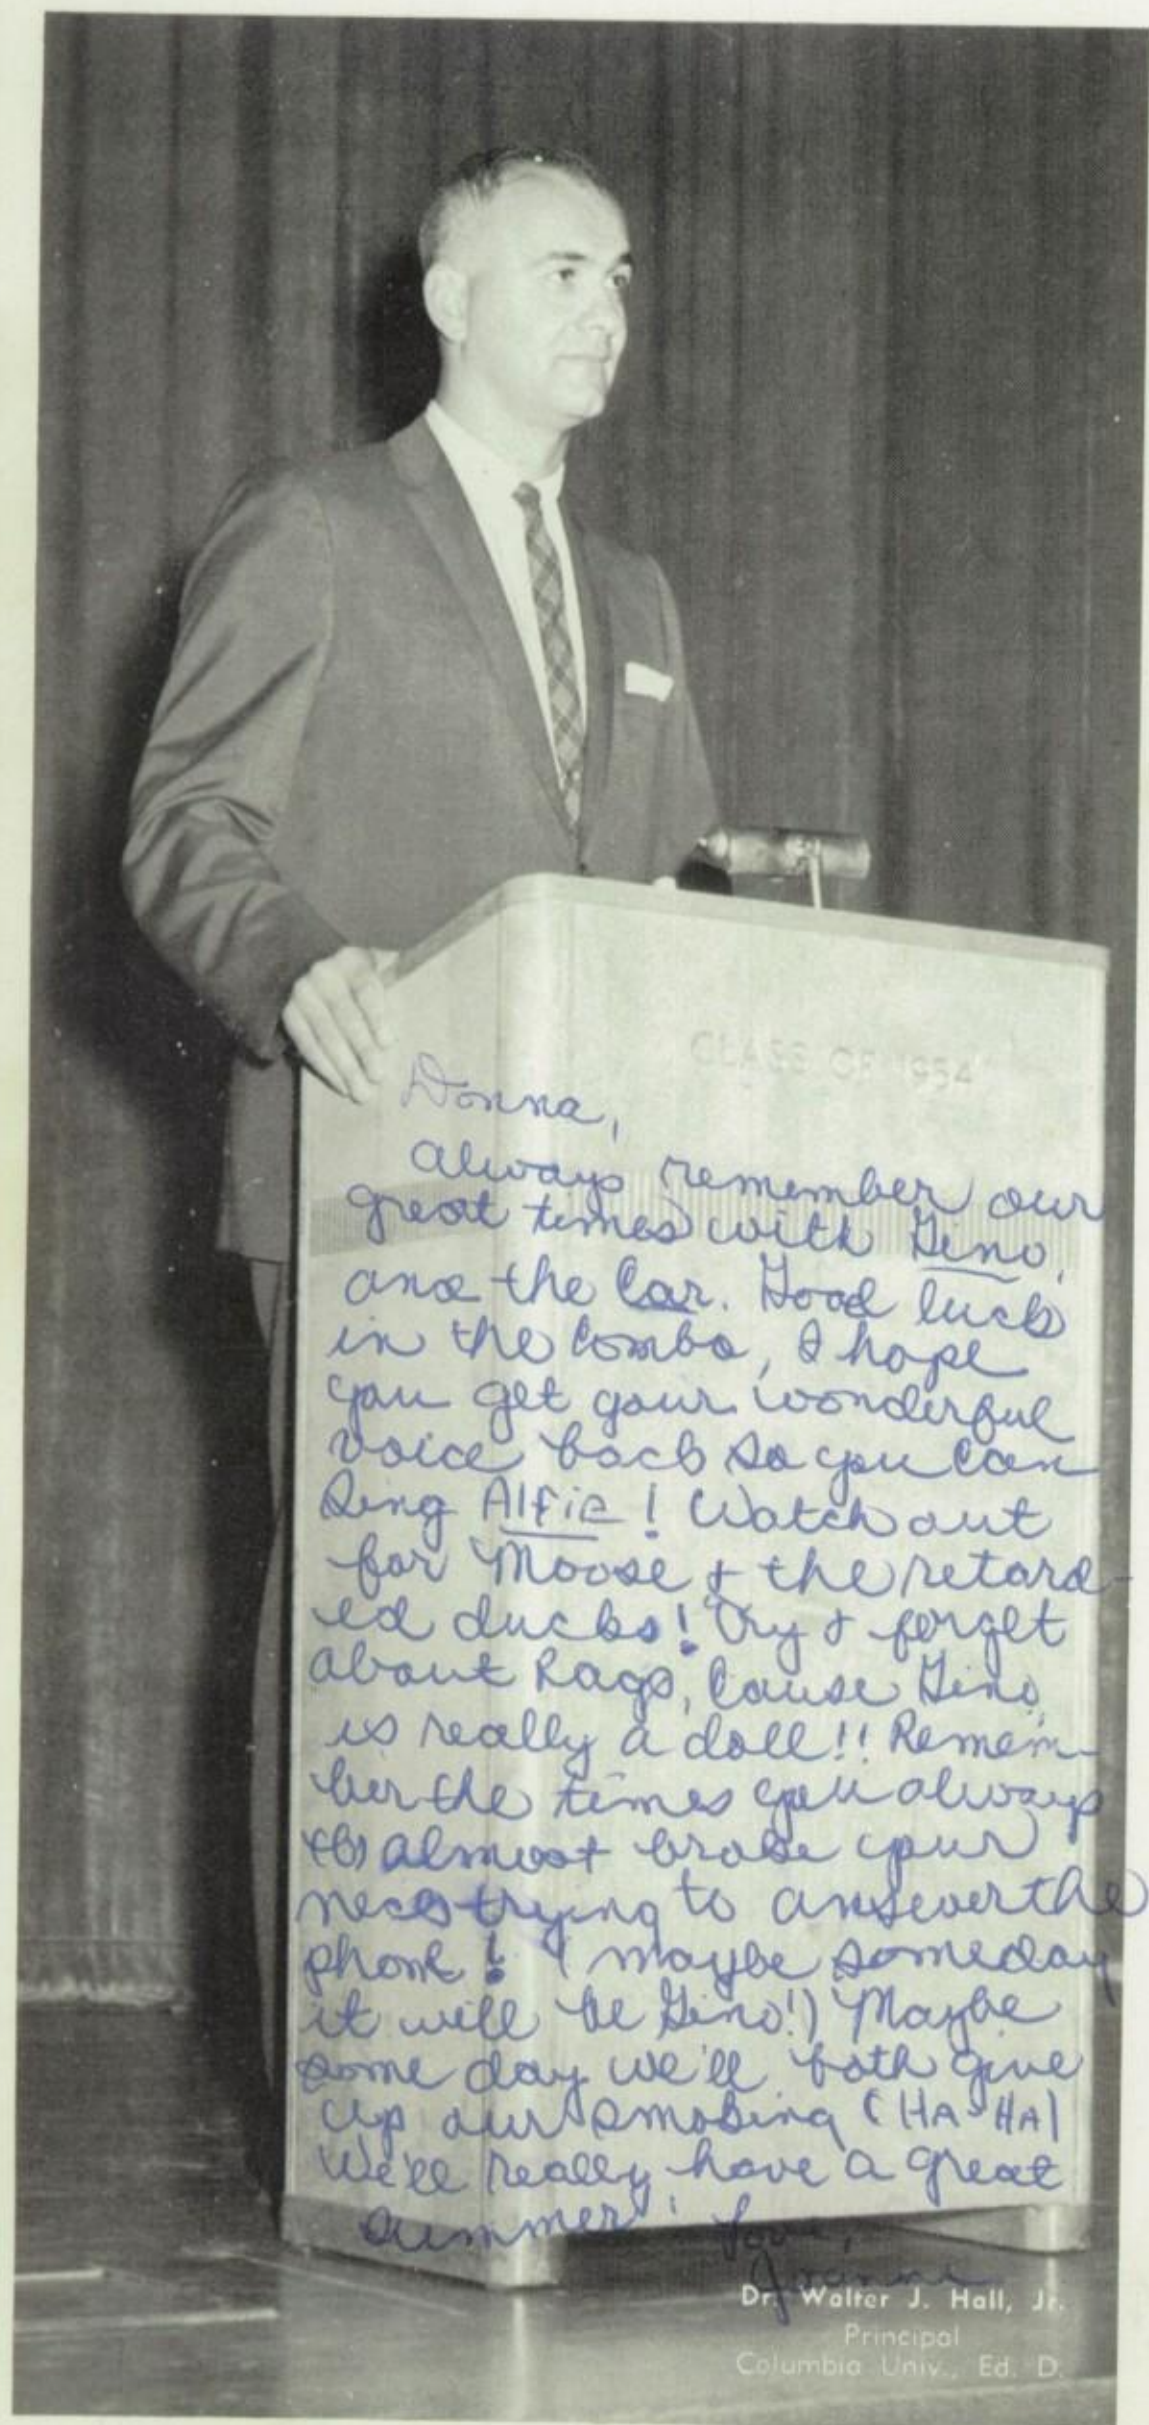

ADMINISTRATION

Efficiency keynoted the activities of the school administrators, organized at three levels. At the township level, the school board was responsible for the effective operation of the entire school district. Within the school, the principal coordinated the aims of the faculty and students. In turn the Student Council, directly elected by the student body, served as a link between the pupils and the other administrative branches.

Forward-looking Dr. Walter J. Hall effected many innovations this year, including once-a-week homerooms, rerouting of stairway and corridor traffic, and improved student-administration relations. Regularly scheduled conferences between students, school officials, and parents encouraged the community to take an active interest in school life.

Three elements—academic pursuits, personal relations, and social development—constitute the facets of a complete education. Dr. Hall strove to combine these elements to teach students to assume responsibility for themselves, both in thought and action.

GUIDANCE DEPARTMENT

Although not equipped with traditional crystal balls, the Guidance Department ably helped students to set up and attain realistic goals. Forward-looking pupils always felt free to confer with their counselors.

In addition to private consultations, the Department developed a group approach in various areas. For example, students with common problems or interests discussed these matters among themselves or with a teacher. A tutoring service was established for students with individual difficulties in a major subject area.

Counselors distributed vast amounts of vocational and college information in the form of pamphlets, records, and filmstrips. Representatives from colleges, businesses, and industries addressed large and small gatherings. Various tests indicated pupils' abilities and interests. In this manner the Guidance Department assisted students in arranging curricula and deciding between college or an immediate career.

ENGLISH

Since the advent of the Beatles, the word English has assumed an extraordinary connotation. With the mention of England, many teenagers imagine a fantasy land where unisexual inhabitants flaunt floral-patterned, hip-slung bell-bottoms. However, one must not forget the traditional meaning of English—that is, the study and consideration of grammar and literature—the conception which still prevails at Haverford.

Students entering tenth grade concentrated on a review of mechanics of grammar and on the development of word power. A general introduction to the fundamentals of composition and to world literature, featuring Cyrano de Bergerac, balanced the year. The eleventh grade course concerned notable American short stories, poetry, and novels. Students discovered that Huckleberry Finn has both simple and complicated levels of enjoyment. Teachers expected juniors to use their grammatical knowledge as a basis for the extensive required writing of book reviews and themes. Seniors had the opportunity to explore the Anglo-Saxon epic Beowulf and Shakespeare's tragedy Macbeth. Again, research papers, book reports, and original literary efforts constituted a major portion of the senior course.

A foundation of grammar and vocabulary resulted in finer creative writing techniques and in a more comprehensive appreciation of literature.

LANGUAGE

Enthusiasm and spirit added spice to the already exotic flavor of language classes. French and Spanish classes, converted to the A-LM method, stressed speaking and listening comprehension. First- and second-year pupils utilized the language lab to improve oral work. In addition, third-year students read novels such as Le Petit Prince and El sombrero de Tres Picos and native magazines such as Paris Match and La Luz. A new French IV course emphasized further development of reading and writing skills and studied Camus' L'etranger and Voltaire's Candide. To speed the progress of pupils requiring help, a program creating student "teachers" was established.

Although chariot races and togas are out of vogue, Fords still delved deep into the past glories of the Roman Empire by perusing Cicero and Vergil. Before accomplishing this extensive reading program, young classicists had learned the essentials of the language.

Students learned German by way of tapes, records, and native writings. Third-year German scholars read Schiller's Wilhelm Tell and other classics. Informally conducted classes stressed oral work and vocabulary.

By studying other tongues, multilingual students prepared themselves for life in a world where vastly different cultures flourish side by side.

HISTORY

In various social studies classes students learned that the Celts painted themselves blue to scare off attacking Roman legions, that the United States government sponsored an official camel corps for the exploration of the Louisiana Purchase, and that lysergic acid diethylamide is the scientific name for the psychedelic drug known as LSD. These few fascinating footnotes were included in the great mass of information presented in several history courses available to interested pupils.

For sophomores the World Cultures classes emphasized historical and geographical surveys of the world, with particular concentration on Europe and Asia. In the junior year, students struggled through the complex story of the United States. American History presented the tremendous scope of the dreams, adventures, and realizations of Americans, from the original settlers to the present inhabitants centuries later. Required in the tenth and eleventh grade curricula, history became an optional course in the senior year and expanded to involve such subjects as European History, Asian Studies, Economics, and Problems of Democracy.

Incorporated into the social studies courses are, of course, the usual research papers, monstrous essay tests, extensive outside reading assignments, and surprise current events exams. Thus the Department seeks to offer a complete, varied, and challenging program to the Haverford student.

MATHEMATICS

Squaring cubes and trisecting angles baffled modern math students as much as it did the ancient philosophers. Nonetheless, the scientific emphasis placed on today's mathematics has made the Queen of the Sciences more complex than Euclid and Pythagoras ever believed possible.

This year Haverford offered two categories of courses for study: one preparing students with college plans, the other for pupils with business careers in mind. Students who followed the college-oriented courses undertook Algebra I, geometry, and then Intermediate Mathematics. Upon completing these courses, they selected Elementary Functions and Matrix Algebra or Algebra III and continued with math analysis and Analytic Geometry and Calculus. Studies along these lines ranged from lowest common multiples and loci to polar coordinates and integration. Those students who pursued a business education took General Math I, II, and III. These courses included math essential for trading, banking, insurance, and other practical work. Future nurses or medical technicians again had the opportunity this year to take a course in nursing math.

With such a diverse math curriculum at Haverford, students were able to choose courses to suit their individual needs.

SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

In the uppermost recesses of Haverford lurked the Science Department. Here test tubes emitted exotic odors; biology students dissected specimens; and physics classes learned that students at rest tend to remain at rest.

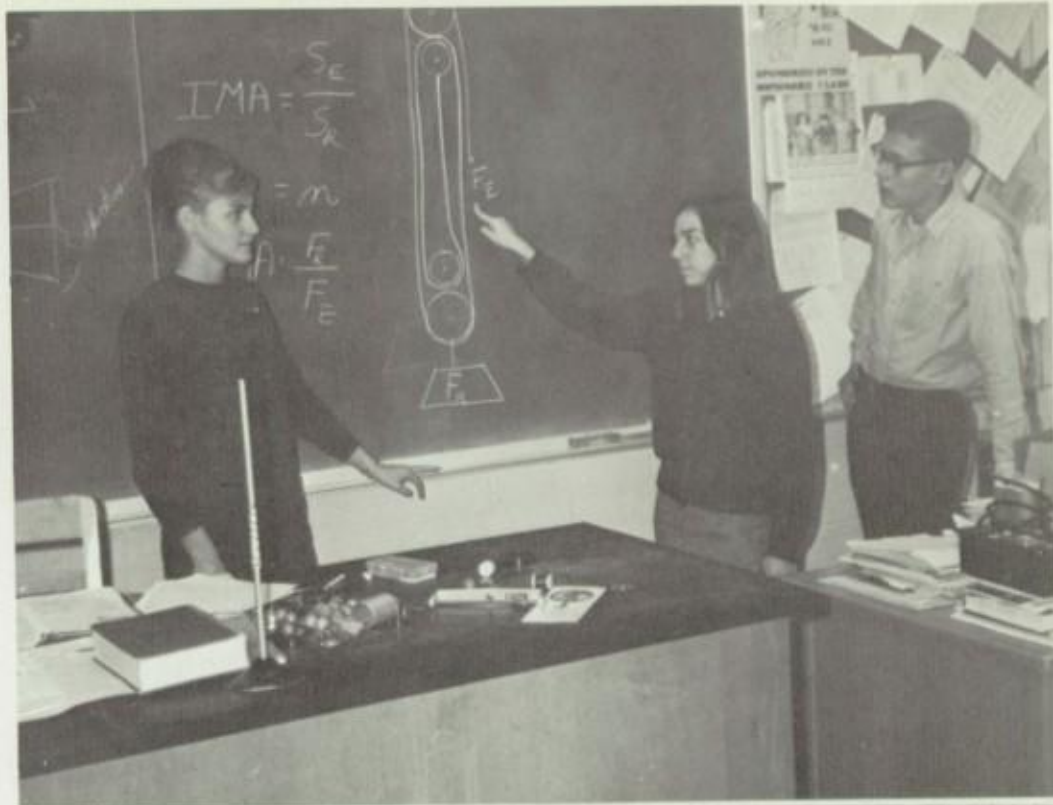

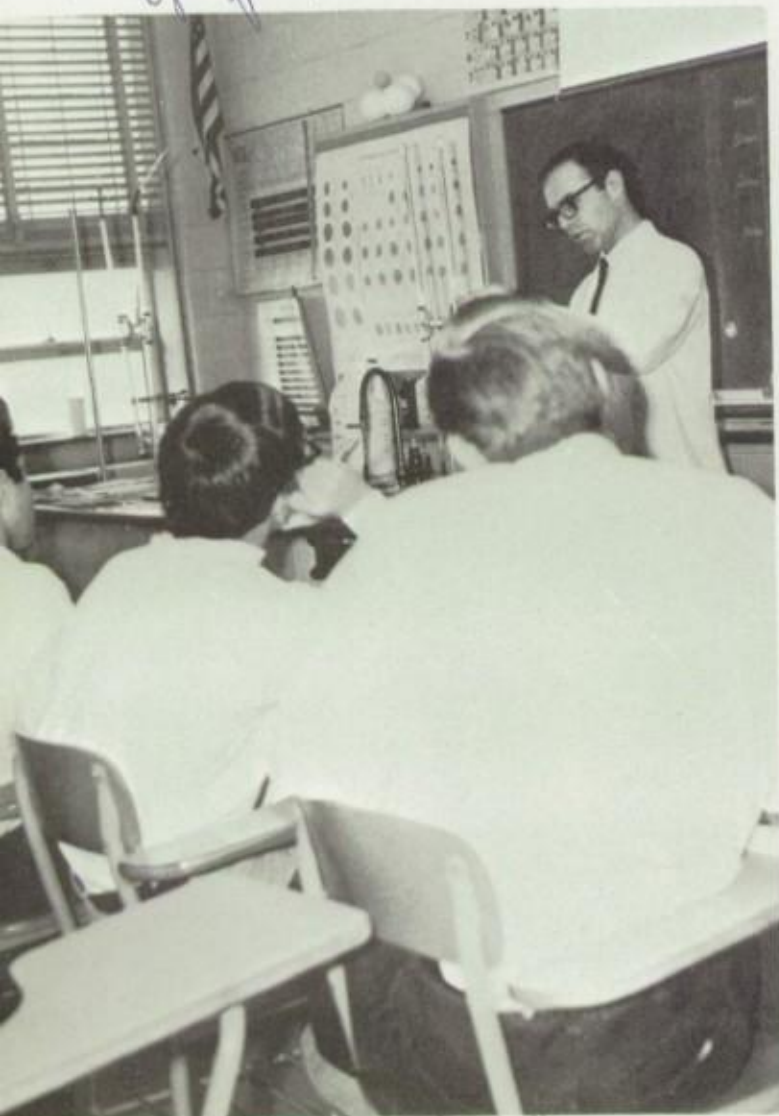

Throughout the department new courses were taught. Tenth grade biology classes studied living things through one of three different versions of the B.S.C.S. (Biology Science Curriculum Study) textbook. Biology II classes once again enjoyed cutting up — cats, sharks, and other complex organisms. Chemistry courses were being converted to a new text which will make identical material available to all chemistry classes. Physics I classes calculated rates and times while Physics II classes explored college physics.

Haverford's successful classes in physical science, a mixture of physics and chemistry, were the first of any high school in the country to use a college text.

As a result of these new programs and advanced studies, the upper limits of our school bubbled with the activity of students investigating the most recent developments and challenges which science has posed.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

While term-paper typists progressed beyond the "hunt and peck" system, aspiring secretaries familiarized themselves with the complexities of the modern business office. In the Business Education Department, courses ranged from shorthand to bookkeeping to the operation of business machines. For those interested in more advanced studies, classes were offered in business law, merchandising, and consumer education. Field trips to a meat-packing plant and speakers from chain stores and insurance companies introduced pupils to the realities of business careers. With such a broad background, students were well equipped to pursue their desired goals.

FINE ARTS

Gone are the days when students learned only the three R's. Pupils who took part in the school's fine arts program channeled their creativity through the use of a wide variety of available resources. Among these facilities was an exceptional school library containing over 12,000 volumes, a paperback section, and an audio-visual aids department.

Musically-inclined students expressed themselves under the guidance of Mr. Paul Fink, who directed the A Capella Choir, the Madrigales, and the Vocal Ensemble; Mr. John Trainer, who conducted the band and taught a music appreciation course; and Mr. Merritt Martin, who led the orchestra.

If a student's knack lay in arts or crafts, he could create mosaics, woven mats, oil paintings, and plaster sculpture in Arts I and II and Crafts I and II classes.

Through these courses art lovers added harmony and color to their lives and laid the foundations for future hobbies and careers.

Boys taking "shop" fashioned bookshelves, lamp bases, and other articles of wood, metal, and plastic. In addition, they provided the school with scenery for its dramatic productions.

Photography instruction during lunch study halls was a new supplement to classes during regular periods. Pupils developed, enlarged, and printed photographs and received advice in picture composition.

Crafts classes wove colorful mats, modeled pottery, and enjoyed making a wide variety of other artistic creations.

These courses trained students for future vocations and avocations.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

In spite of showers, grimy gym suits, broken bones, cuts, and scrapes, physical education classes provided "entertainment" 'not only for the participants but also for on-lookers in other classes during the out-of-doors months.

In the fall, athletically inclined young men tackled football, soccer, and speed-ball, huffed and puffed through a program of Marine physical fitness tests. The girls attempted soccer and speed-ball, after recovering from swollen shins, the marks of hockey. During the winter season students enjoyed basketball, volleyball, and apparatus; the boys also included wrestling on their agenda. As spring came in with a cool gust and a call to the out-of-doors again, the youths of H.H.S. participated in baseball, softball, badminton, table tennis, and the various forms of track.

Physical education is not complete without hygiene. During their sophomore year, pupils learned the rudiments of first aid and the causes and cures of various diseases. Upperclassmen studied personality traits and concluded the year by receiving special instruction in family relations.

These two prescriptions played a vital part in preparing graduates for their future lives as mentally and physically fit members of society.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT

"Will the following students please report to the infirmary . . ." This daily announcement drew the attention of all pupils toward the Medical Department. Juniors, notified through the lunch bulletin of their schedule, took hearing tests and received complete physical examinations. This year, the department gave a vision test to each student. The medical staff arranged appointments with speech and hearing therapists and other special help for pupils with emotional or physical handicaps. In addition, this Department coped with the typical, day-to-day problems of the students. Ever available, the trained nurses administered emergency treatment for sore throats, scraped fingers, and other minor illnesses and injuries. They authorized the readmittance of pupils with prolonged absences. Before participation in competitive sports, athletes received medical check-ups.

The Medical Department did not aim to be a treatment clinic. Nonetheless, it provided first aid and guidance for the students.

"Third day of maintenance department strike throws Haverford into chaos," cried out the Fordian headlines. Temporary bus drivers have lost their way — location of half the student body still unknown! Fortunately, the above description was imaginary; but it represented what school might be like without its non-professional employees. This oft-ignored group of men and women was as important as any other department in the school, for upon the work of these people depended the efficient functioning of Haverford's educational system.

The custodial staff, under the supervision of Mr. William Patton, had the task of the general cleaning of the school and of the adjusting of the huge boilers and generators. Janitors made countless trips through the halls and classrooms silently sweeping up mounds of lost pencils, accumulated dust, and shredded litter.

For two hours the seventeen women and two men of the cafeteria staff coped with two thousand hungry, impatient students. Every half hour, Mrs. Mary Nicom and her toiling crew supplied five hundred people with the sandwiches, platters, and desserts which constitute inexpensive and nutritious meals.

Thus, through the efforts of these people, students were supplied with food, transportation, light, heat, and sanitary conditions. Furthermore, the custodial and cafeteria staffs remained a warm, human aspect in the increasingly automated and computerized school system.

INVOLVEMENT

ACTIVITIES

They're off! Jubilant students burst from the school when the bell rang at 2:15. For many others, however, that bell marked the start of the second half of their fast-moving day. Participating in a wide variety of activities, pupils applied their physical ability, self-expression, leadership, and imagination outside the classroom. Thus, students learned to enjoy today while preparing for a better future.

S.C. Assumes Charge Of Morning Exercises

Serving as a forum for debate and discussion of student issues, the 1966-67 Student Council accomplished much both within the school and outside under the dynamic supervision of President Richard Lawson and Sponsor Mr. Frank McHugh. Student phone directories, pep rallies, Homecoming festivities, expansion of the bookstore, elections of class officers, and faculty teas comprised but a few of the group's duties in the former area. Raising funds for dittybags to send to Viet Nam, directing the morning exercises and announcements, and organizing student monitors during the fourth lunch hour numbered among this year's "Firsts." The All School Show raised funds for projects and financed the scholarships awarded at the end of the year. Volunteers collected for the Heart Fund and a cancer drive while clothing bundles were made up for the poor in Appalachia. From the opening day "welcome" for sophomores and teachers through the election of next year's officers, the Student Council strived for and succeeded in bettering the school and the community.

Honor Society Inducts 97 Outstanding Students

Ability in the diverse fields of scholarship, leadership, service, and character earned twenty-seven juniors and seventy seniors the highest distinction the school can bestow—induction into the National Honor Society, April 19, 1967. The juniors and seniors, chosen from the top fifth and third of their classes respectively, were rated by faculty members and elected by a committee composed of teachers, guidance personnel, and administrator. Following brief speeches by the officers on the four desired qualities, WCAU-TV news analyst Mr. Donald Barnhouse expounded on these traits and their application in a world which will not always seem receptive. After the ceremony a reception was held for new inductees and their parents. Advisors Mr. Nicholas B. Sacchetti and Miss E. Steele Houchens and President Lowell Miller helped plan the group's other major project, a Christmas tea for former members.

Many late night and early morning hours of work went into the preparation of GREYSTONES '67 to insure an accurate account of the school year. Business staff members began taking orders early in September for delivery in June, and a record-breaking number of 1650 books were sold. The editorial staff labored diligently throughout the year, scheduling photographs, writing copy, experimenting with new techniques in lay-out design, and attending to the thousand and one crises which constantly appeared out of nowhere. Photographers employed the latest innovation in photographic techniques, the fish-eye lens, which created a unique 180° view for several divider pages. Encouraged by GREYSTONES '66, which won a first place at the CSPA convention in October and ranked in the top 10% of national competition, this year's staff toiled industriously to produce a year-book unequalled in quality. The services of Faculty Advisor Mr. Gerald C. Harter and Literary Advisor Mrs. Barbara S. Markowitz were indispensable in the planning and final production of GREYSTONES '67.

As a mirror of student opinion, the Fordian kept readers well-informed about school happenings. Informal reviews of current books and films as well as a wide variety of features amused and informed pupils while editorials debated current issues. Editor-in-chief Lowell Miller and Advisor Mr. John J. Fahey ranked typography changes and photography features among this year's major innovations.

At the forty-third annual convention of the Columbia School Press Association, the Fordian earned a Medalist rating, the only newspaper of its kind in the state to earn such an honor. In recognition of this achievement, the staff received a letter of congratulation from Governor Raymond P. Shafer.

Originality and invention highlighted this year's PEN & INK. Under the guidance of Editor-in-Chief Cindy O'Hara and advisors Mr. John Rybnik and Miss Beth Worthington, the staff produced two fine magazines. The publication combined essays, short stories, and poems with skillfully executed illustrations. Although contributions were solicited mainly from the regular staff, a sizable number of non-staff members also submitted creative material.

Complementing the literary achievements was the imaginative art work. Interpretive drawings added an esthetic touch to the magazine and spotlighted outstanding artistic talent.

PEN & INK Offers Outlet For Creative Expression

Staff members Ellen Weiner, Ann Simpson, Betsy Cohen, Wendy Koso, Cindy O'Hara, Ellen Zankman, and Barbara Beale work on script titles for the spring issues.

From Mozart's "Symphony #40 in G Minor" to Percy and Fletcher's "Folk Tune and Fiddle Dance," the Orchestra practiced a wide variety of compositions, performed them for appreciative audiences, and achieved distinction. The group participated in an exchange with Lower Merion May 9. Ensembles conducted by students provided musical accompaniment for the fashion show, card party, talent show, and junior and senior plays. The eighty-nine members of the orchestra, led by Mr. Merrit Martin, performed for several assembly programs, with Music Night climaxing the year's activities. Fifteen musicians were selected to take part in Southeastern District Regional Orchestra at Great Valley High School in Malvern. Of these students, Concert Mistress Donna Tecco, Jimmy Carter, Ron Cantelm, Chuck Parker, and Pam Langer were chosen for the All-State Regional Orchestra, which presented concerts April 20-22 at Wyalusing. Playing the French horn, Terry Hoffman represented the school in the mid-Eastern Orchestra. For members of the orchestra, the year brought rewarding experiences and great satisfaction.

Russian hymns, Scottish ditties, Irish ballads, and English madrigals comprised the repertoire of the 1966-67 A Cappella Choir, directed by Mr. Paul Fink. This year's chorus performed for school assemblies as well as for various civic organizations.

The Havertones, a vocal ensemble, presented an amusing medley of show tunes set into a routine called, "New York, New York." In a more serious vein, the Madrigales, a group of selected voices, worked with sixteenth- and seventeenth-century English chamber music.

In November, Valley Forge Memorial Chapel hosted the choir as they honored Alaska's statehood. At Christmastime, the Madrigales entertained various organizations, most notably the Piano Technicians' Guild, with a program which consisted mainly of French carols. In April, forty-seven members of the choir traveled to Westfield, N. J., where they were enthusiastically received by the Westfield High School.

After the football season, the Band concentrated on preparing for concerts. A wide range of stirring works highlighted performances for assemblies and in the Spring Concert: Richard Roger's "Victory at Sea," Paul Creston's "Prelude and Dance," Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pineapple Poll," and Percy Grainger's "Lincolnshire Posy."

More band members participated in both district and regional bands than have taken part in any previous year. Eleven students performed in the Lower Southeastern District Band Concert at Penncrest High School. Six of those students were selected to play at the Regional Band Concert, March 9-11, in Harrisburg: James Hall, Terry Hoffman, David Nestler, George Kamajian, Brian Phipps, and Sherry Woolford. Under the direction of Mr. John A. Trainer, the group experienced an enjoyable season.

Batons flashing in the sunlight, the briskly strutting majorettes preceded the band at each football game. Diversified songs set the pace for tricky routines presented by Majorettes Mary Ann Burg (Captain), Edie Parker, Karen Rush, and Susan Kerchner.

Adding color and life to the mid-game festivities, the newly-uniformed marching band aroused school spirit in football fans. Besides complex drill formations and pep songs, the band, directed by Mr. John A. Trainer, performed modern tunes including the popular "There's No Business Like Show Business" and "Tijuana Taxi."

Under the watchful eye of student advisor Ray Benedetto, the first all-girl color guard in its second season led the band onto the field. Also dressed in new uniforms, color guard members Betty Murta (Captain), Joan Collins, Carolyn Dennis, Carolyn Green, and alternates Gail Browne, Fran Murta, Bonnie Casey, and Dail Kern performed precision drills during half-time.

WHHS Pioneers Tutorial Program

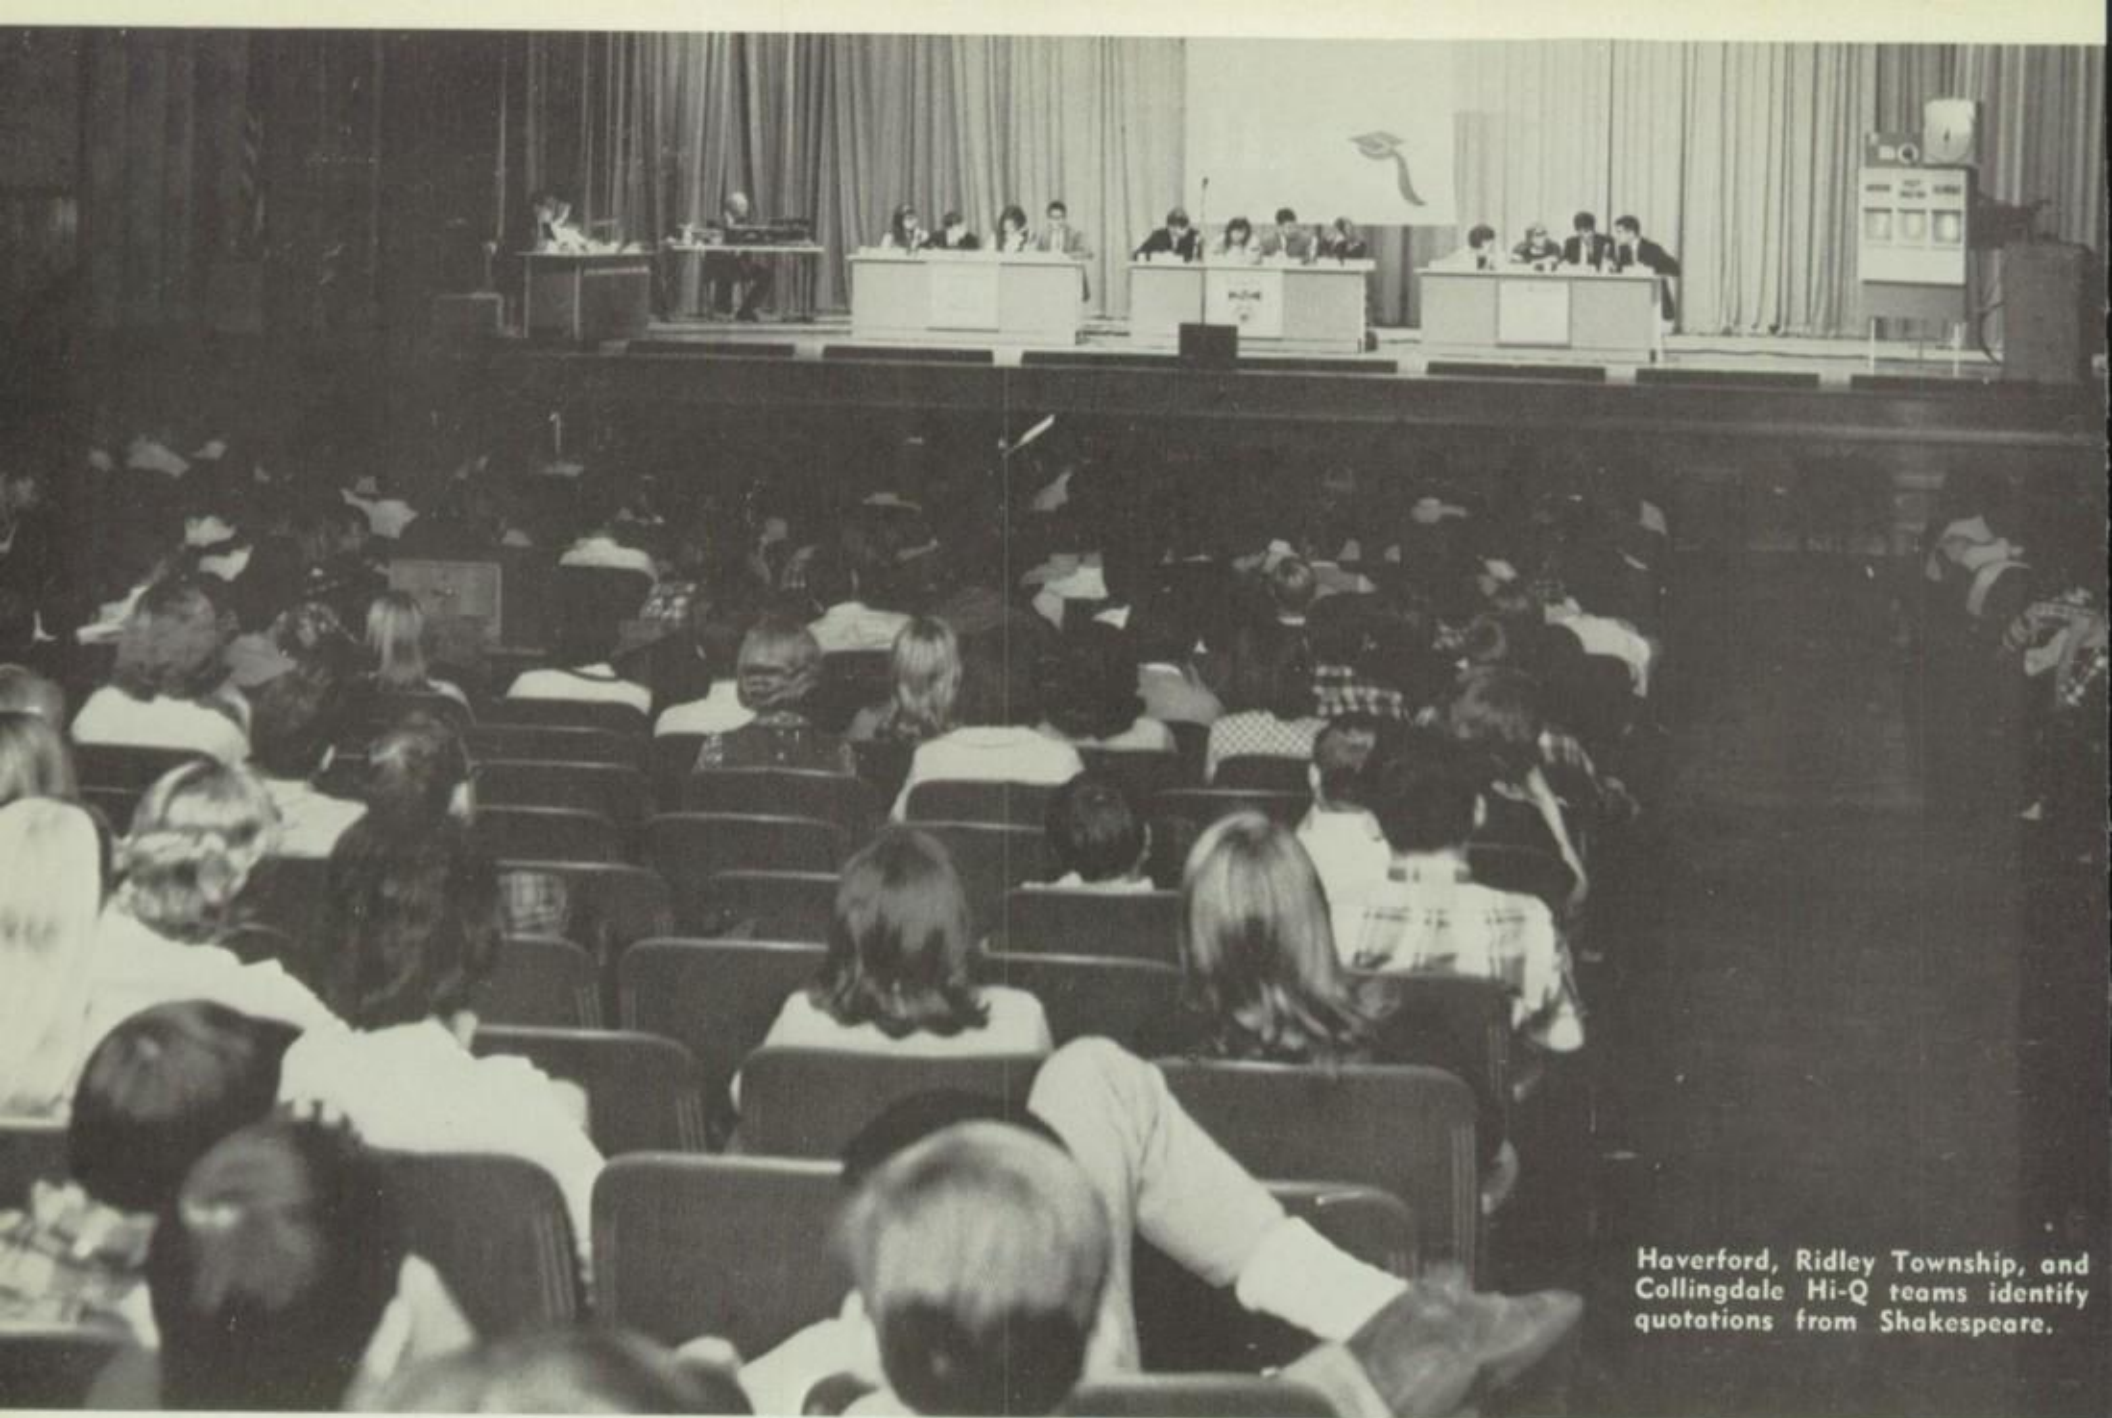

Bigger and better than ever at 89.3 FM, WHHS, the only high school student-run radio station in the state, informed listeners of the latest happenings in news, music, art, science, and world affairs. Under the direction of Program Director Steve Shapiro and this year's new faculty advisor, Mr. Charles Axarlis, the station presented a number of original and exciting shows. The addition of more than forty enthusiastic neophyte broadcasters amplified the scope and depth of both old and new presentations, which included "School House," a tutorial program, several night-time rock-and-roll programs, and a varied musical agenda. The addition of new transmitting equipment, a gift from the School Board, improved the broadcasting of fall and winter sports events. Next year's substantial troupe of returning engineers hopes to top even this year's tremendous record.

Defeating Radnor and Interboro, Ron Brachman, Stan Lovenworth, Captain Martha Purvis, Virginia Showers, and alternate David Nestler placed first in this year's final round of Scott's Hi-Q. To reach the finals, the team won all three of its preliminary matches, accumulating 102 points, the highest score of the twenty-one participating schools. In preparation for each game, Advisor Mr. Robert Bennett coached the intellectuals in mathematics, science, and history. This success earned the school one thousand dollars from the Scott Paper Company; each team member received a gold watch.

Haverford's It's Academic team, sponsored by Miss Claire Burrows, attained the finals in this year's contests, broadcast by KYW-TV. Team members Martha Purvis, Stan Lovenworth, Kurt Pressman, and Ron Brachman overcame John Bartram and Deptford Township in the preliminaries, Penn Charter and Ridley Township in the playoffs, and Springfield and Harriton in the semifinals. In recognition of this accomplishment, the school received a set of Collier's Encyclopedia, and two sets of Harvard Classics.

GSC Visits Haverford State Hospital

WWW Aids Peruvian Exchange Student

From Germany to India to Peru, the World Wide Workshop studied the life and culture of many nations. The monthly meetings, presided over by President Laura Peck and Advisor Miss Elisabeth Ott, featured new facets of life in a particular country, current events lectures, and information on opportunities for travel and study abroad, often presented by guest speakers. An international covered-dish supper was one of the year's highlights. Selling candy at football games and Easter eggs helped to support Marita Barron, the Peruvian exchange student, while corresponding with the Joseph Leckie School in England and Erica Schule in Germany as well as exchanging gifts with the latter at Christmas added a more personal dimension to international understanding.

Although Carnation Day and weekly Goodie Days are the best-known activities of the Girls' Service Club, they are by no means the only ones. Funds raised by those projects supported an orphan in Viet Nam and supplied Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for two needy families. Led by President Cheryl Stewart and Advisor Mrs. Sue Pass, members also caroled at the Inglis Home. At Easter the club collected money for Lily Day and sponsored an egg hunt. Strengthening ties between the community and the school, the girls rounded out their activities with a visit to the children's ward at Philadelphia General Hospital and monthly trips to Haverford State Hospital.

Antigone Triumphs On JCL Stage; German Club Holds October Fest

"Latin lives!" was the slogan of Haverford's chapter of the Junior Classical League. Under the spirited sponsorship of Miss Bernice Gilmore, the JCL both educated and entertained its members with programs on the culture of the ancients. This year, Consul Paul Shechtman headed the club in its several projects—the performing of the play Antigone, the annual picnic at Valley Forge, the Roman-style banquet and Saturnalia festivities, and the issuing of the unique journal Acta Publicae. In December the organization assembled Christmas baskets for three needy families in the township. Members discovered that the comprehensive study of Latin must include more than Caesar's campaigns in Gaul or the Eclogues of Vergil, for the far-reaching influence of Roman culture is evidenced today in our military tactics, architectural styles, and in the language we speak. Latin is far from "dead."

Gemutlichkeit reigned as German Club members imbibed root beer and birch beer at the October Fest, a replica of that German beer festival. "Wir Wunderkinder," a full-length German movie with English subtitles, and slides and a lecture delivered by Dr. Hall also entertained the group. Head by President Rich Sedmak and Advisors Messrs. Donald Edelman and Geoffrey Harford, the organization celebrated the end of the year with a smorgasbord.

"Let's try an ablative absolute," suggests Acta editor Patty Cundiff to exchange editor Jeff Janoski, correcting a story written in Latin.

"A live bull for our next meeting?" exclaims Spanish Club President Bob Brennan to officers (l-r) Sherri Engelman, Barbara Beale, Erica Cooper, and Sponsor Mr. Frank Salvatore.

Sandals, sombrero, burro, and coffee beans constitute the popular image of the Spanish person. Updating this outmoded impression was the aim of Haverford's Spanish Club led by President Bob Brennan and sponsored by Mr. Frank Salvatore. Through movies, slides, and guest speakers, Los Buenos Vecinos—"the good neighbors," as the group calls itself—learned of Spanish customs and unique culture. This year an exchange student from Peru—Marita Barron—stirred great interest with her knowledge of the South American way of life. Pan-American Week commemoration, a Christmas party, and tutoring services were a few of the special activities in which members participated.

Striving to provide French scholars with a greater understanding of the French people and culture, Le Cercle Francais invited students who had traveled or attended school in France to speak about their experiences. The singing of French Christmas carols and performing of Marcel Marceau's pantomime "The Overcoat" marked the December meeting. Later in the year the club saw a French film and sponsored a trip to see the untranslated version of Moliere's play Les Femmes Savantes, performed by a French theater group. The annual April banquet culminated the year's activities.

While exploring the various opportunities in the teaching profession, the Future Teachers of America acquired experience in the field as well. President Susan Dunn and Advisor Mr. Robert Cenname invited outside speakers to address the group on teaching children with speech and auditory problems, special education for slow learners, and Operation Head Start. The club visited area high schools and elementary schools, publicized American Education Week, and sent delegates to the FTA convention in Harrisburg, April 7-8. Tutoring students, correcting tests, and occasionally taking over classes, members found truth in the proverb, "He who teaches learns."

Tic-tac-toe, cube roots, and fundamental language translations are among the amazing skills of SIMON, brainchild of the Future Scientists of America Club. SIMON is a general purpose digital computer financed and constructed by members under the auspices of Mr. Schmuckler and Mr. Snyder. FSA, headed by President Richard Sedmak, sponsored several such undertakings to acquaint students with the various fields of mathematics and science. This organization also aided its members in making career choices through discussion of future employment opportunities. Speakers from local colleges and demonstrations and movies from Franklin Institute and Bell Telephone provided entertaining and educational background for these ambitious future scientists.

Acquiring practical experience in the school infirmary, the girls in the Future Nurses' Club made beds, administered minor first aid, took temperatures, and filed medical records. Under the guidance of Mrs. Yerger and President Carol Heck, members prepared candy for Haverford State Hospital and hosted Radnor High School's FNC. A missionary nurse showed slides from Africa, and an Army nurse introduced the girls to all aspects of this vocation. New officers were announced at a Strawberry Festival, May 9.

When people speak of the self-centeredness of youth they are certainly not speaking of the Future Homemakers of America. One of the original service groups of the school, this year the group concentrated its energies on making puppets for Crossnore School, fixing Easter baskets for a children's ward, and sewing kits for South Viet Nam. At Christmas-time the FHA collected $150 to send to India through CARE. Under the leadership of President Peggy Frank and Sponsors Miss Marion Mellinger and Miss Katharine Van Tine, the girls endeavored to build a better future for themselves and others.

Only the knowledgeable and well-versed can truly appreciate a work of art. Acquainting the student with such artistic fields as sculpture, painting, and architecture is the purpose of Haverford's Art Club. Under the guidance of sponsor Mr. Carney, this group, headed by President Linda Roseboro, learned the intricacies of creative endeavor. Besides, the members did work on publicity posters and scenery painting. Sessions with guest speakers and visits to the Art Museum and the Academy of Fine Arts constituted a major part of the club's educational experience.

By discussing various aspects of current events, the World Affairs Club sought understanding and solutions of social and international problems. In this vein the group, led by President Stanton Lovenworth and Advisor Mr. Walter Swank, debated the admission of Red China into the United Nations while Professor Larry Curry lectured on socialism. Enlightening forums were held on the Bay of Pigs invasion, NATO, and South West Africa. At the annual model United Nations sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Greater Philadelphia, members climaxed the year by serving as delegates from Peru and the Central African Republic.

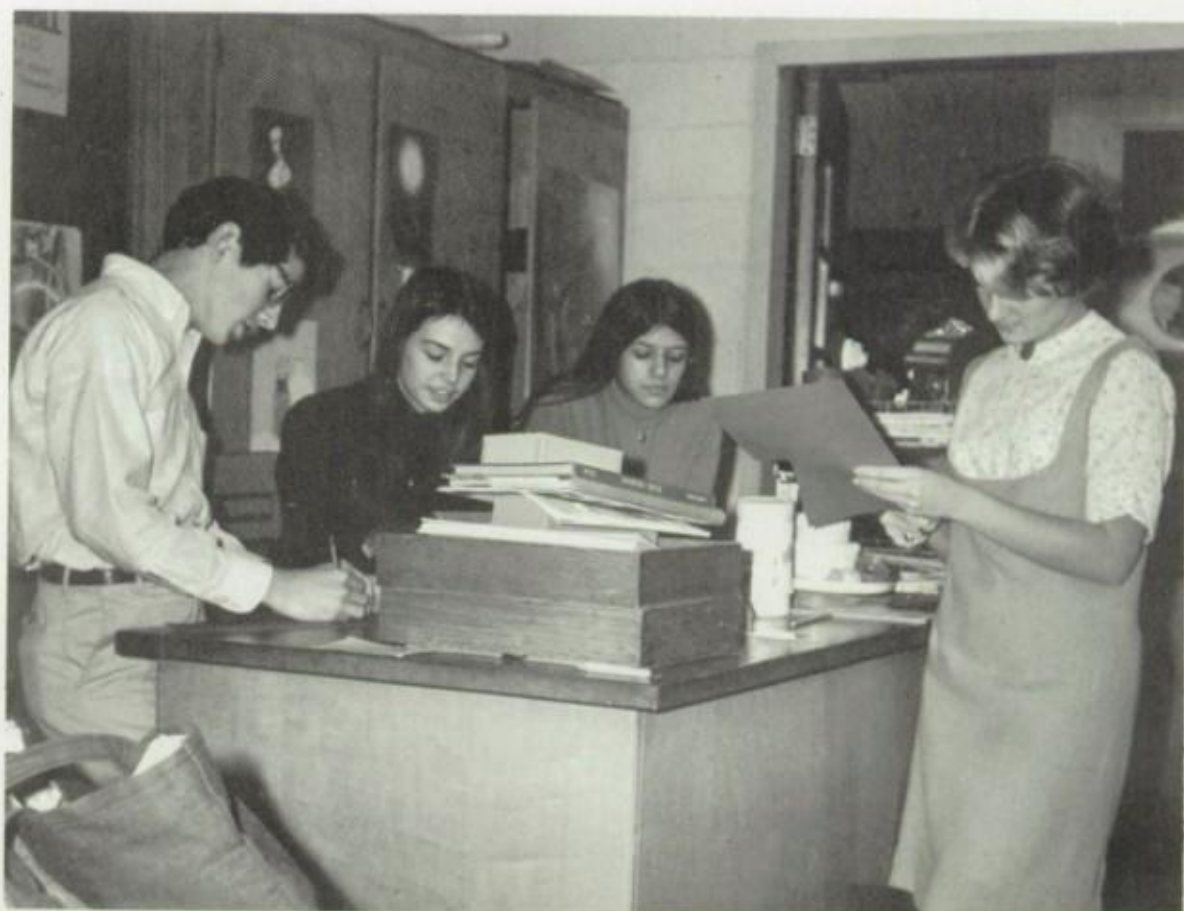

Connoisseurs of the music of Phil Ochs, Buffy Ste. Marie, and the Greenbrier Boys, the Folkalists promoted appreciation of the "down-home" sound. Folk entertainers from the school and the community performed for the club while the Main Point Coffee House made its facilities available to the group for a night. Bringing the atmosphere of mocha java and hot cider to the school, President Howard Sacks and Sponsor Mrs. Laura J. Ulmer helped members celebrate the end of the year with a coffee house party to which they invited alumni and professional folksingers.

220 Girl Bowlers Compete for Prizes

"Strike!" "Spare!" "Nuts!" Bowler's lingo filled the atmosphere as over two hundred girls enjoyed weekly competition at Wynnewood Lanes. Advised by Mmes. Muriel McCloskey and Helen Eddy, members of the Girls' Bowling Club strived to improve their averages and rack up high scores. At the annual May banquet, trophies were awarded for the highest individual scores, highest team score, and highest average.

In the double elimination tournament held at Harriton High School, the Girls' Volleyball Team captured this year's first place title. After losing the first game, the team, led by Captain Sue Davit and LaDoris Hazzard, won each of the next six matches. For the third year Mrs. Pass coached a successful team.

"Checkmate!" Haverford's Chess Club racked up their final victory for an undefeated season. This year Sponsor Mr. James Hughes and President Mark Greene matched wits with other strategists on the team. The success of the team should be attributed to the excellence of the players and hours of practice. A trophy went to the year's chief checkmater.

Members of the Secretarial Club, students in Mrs. Shrut's second-year shorthand and Typing II class, serve the school by typing and mimeographing during their study halls. Faculty members as well as other clubs recruited these girls to help with paper work. With an eye to the future, members gained knowledge and proficiency in office techniques.

Performing their invaluable and unseen service, Stage Crew members skirted footlights and shinnied to unbelievable heights. Messrs. J. Ernest Heegard and Lambert Sailer devoted long afternoon and night hours to the club, advising them on the setting and building of scenery as well as on the construction of special projects for teachers.

Behind the scenes, Stage Crew members Wayne Hearn, Jon Ogle, Dave Getty, Grant Mazmanian, Herb Adams, Tom McNutt, Jim Guida, Steve Fortin, and Ned Markle set up flats and columns for the senior play.

Advised by Sponsor Mrs. Emily Haynes and President Carolyn Green, members of Fordian Fellowship explored Christian principles both on the personal and the international level. In keeping with their fellowship philosophy, the club undertook as their major project the support of an orphan in Taiwan.

"Let There Be Surf!" echoed through the halls of Haverford as the Boys' Hi-Y announced the presentation of a professional surfing movie. This film raised the money necessary for the continuation of the club's community services. Headed by President Bill Nessler and advisor Mr. Van Roden, the group's major projects for the year included the construction of a large roster board in the gymnasium for wrestling and basketball games.

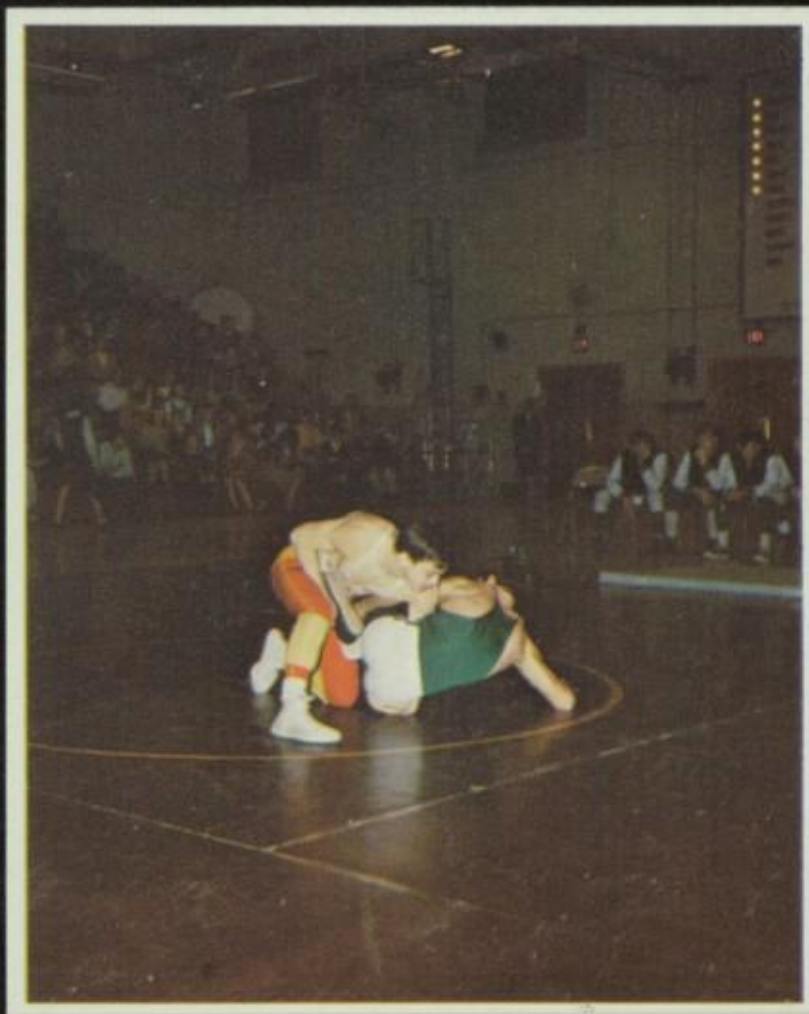

RESOLUTION

ATHLETICS

"Onward to Victory!" This slogan characterized the dedication and drive of Ford athletes. Grueling as the long daily hours of practice seemed, the thrill of the actual game made each minute worthwhile. With ardent spectators cheering them on, the teams strove for and enjoyed the rewards of success. Victorious seasons in football, hockey, wrestling, and girls' basketball gave this year's sports a new dimension—the suspense of maintaining this brilliant record throughout the spring season.

CHEERLEADERS

When students attended a Haverford sports event, they noticed one thing first and last — the cheerleaders. Ten figures of red, white, and gold — these vivacious girls contributed to the Fords' successful seasons with their efforts. Co-captains Ann Staib and Lee Berger led the squad in yells, chants, and songs; and faculty sponsor Miss Barbara Crehan advised both the varsity and jayvee squads. A major element in the athletic program, the cheerleaders kindled a blaze of school spirit at Haverford this year.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

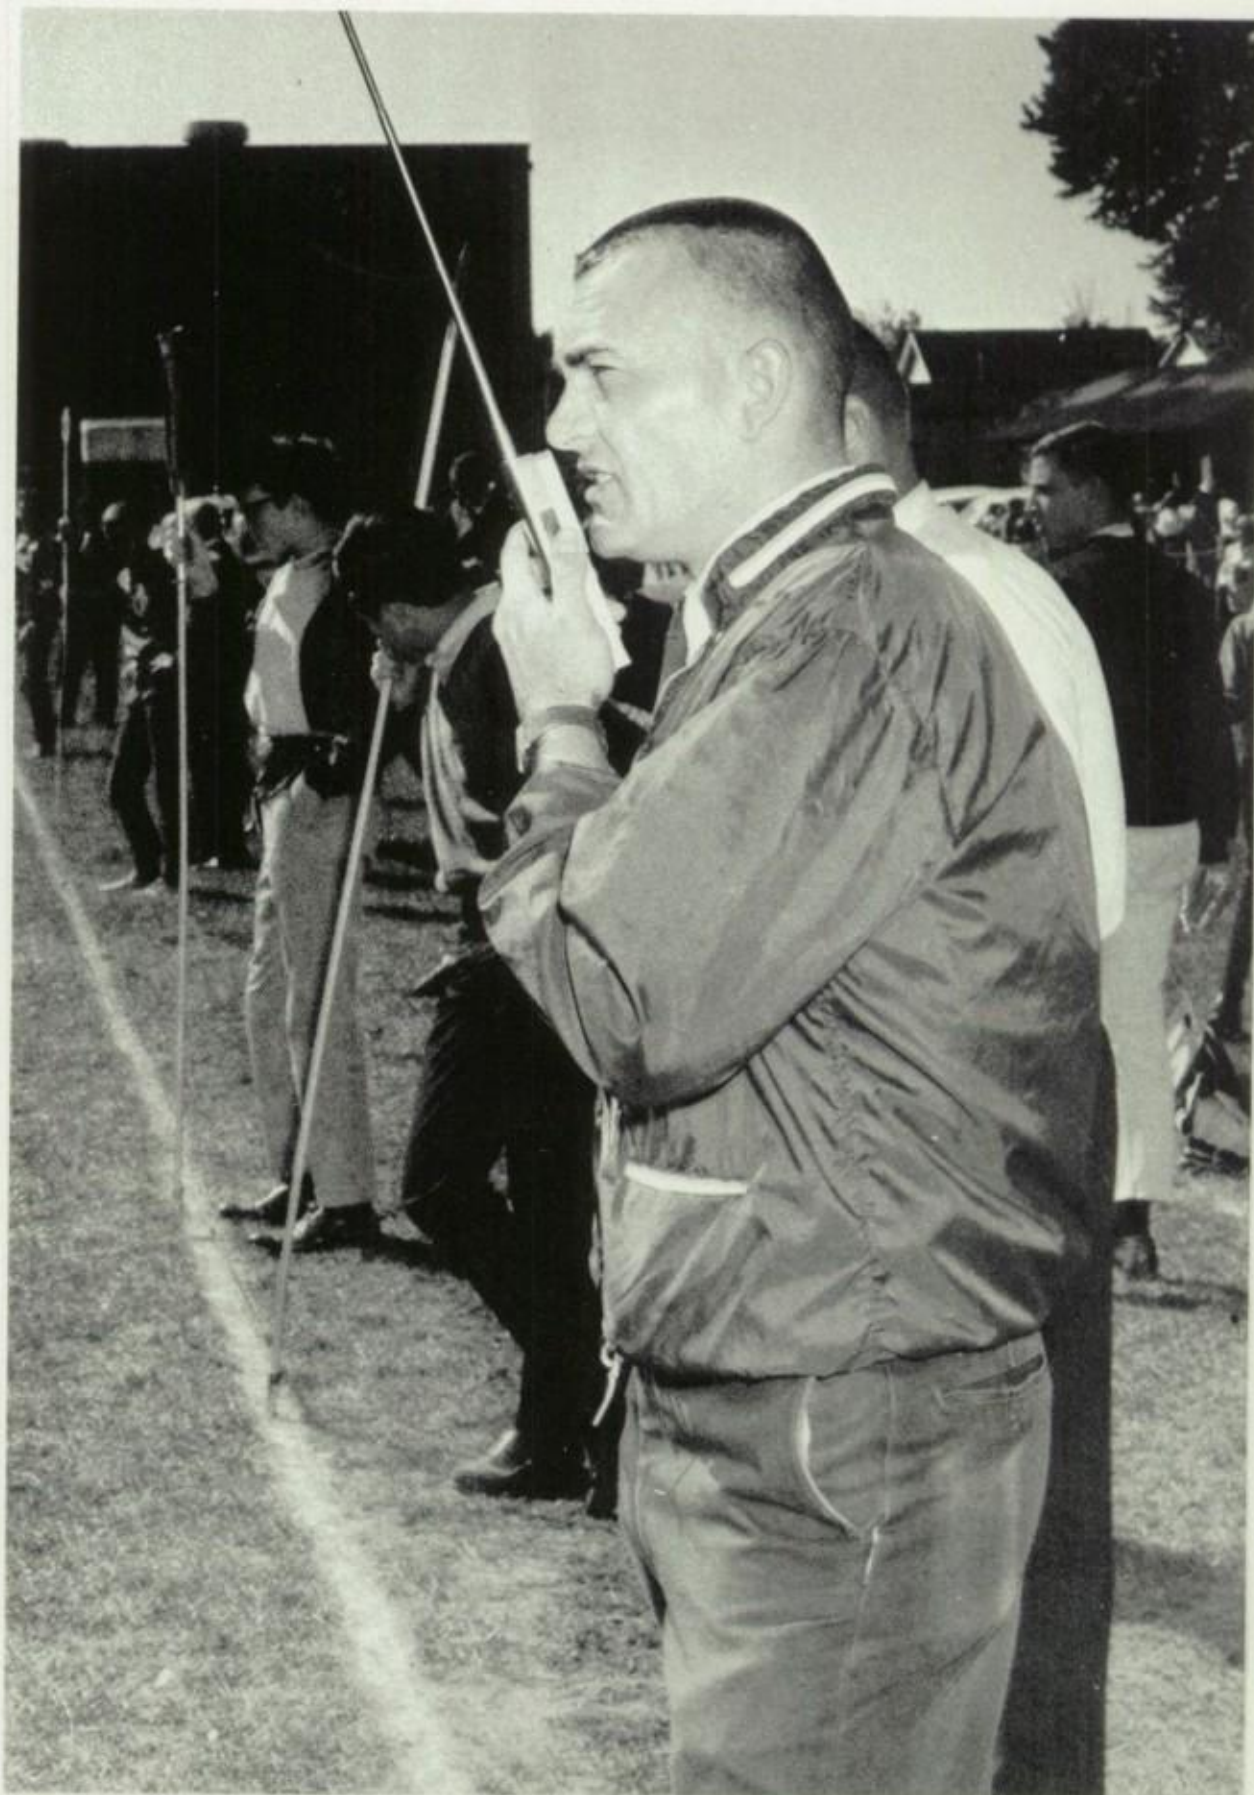

Breaking Ridley's twenty-three-game winning streak with a 20-6 victory launched the Fords on a brilliant season ending in the Suburban South co-championship. Three players — Bob Cabrelli, John Barlow, and Craig Basile — made the All-Eastern Delaware County first team. In the traditional Thanksgiving Day game co-captains Cabrelli and Bill Reynolds, leading the running attack, spurred the gridgers to a 27-7 win over Upper Darby. Ends John Barlow and Jim Ward made a devastating pass combination with junior quarterback Barry Henry. Providing pass protection and holes for the backs were the unsung heroes of the game—linemen Bill Schwartz, Jimmy Neiman, Craig Basile, Craig Reese, and Rich Lawson. Dave McKeever, Bob Arnesen, Mark Snyder, and Bill Abnett added their talents to the defensive squad. In his last and best season, head coach Ewald Kalmbach was named the Eastern Delco Coach of the Year.

JUNIOR VARSITY FOOTBALL

"Experience and Stephen Juenger are the best teachers." Young football aspirants learned this axiom early as Jayvee players. This year's team picked up not only the valuable knowhow needed to graduate to the varsity, but also a winning record. Quarterback Bobby Croff, halfbacks Harris Plotnick and Jimmy Reynolds, and center Bruce Kennet took care of the offensive chores in compiling their 5-3 record. The defense was bolstered by the play of linebackers Scott Sanders and Joe Sabatini and lineman Mark Derr. These and other gridders constituted the strong passing game and solid defense that characterized the 1966 junior varsity football squad.

CROSS COUNTRY

Muscles tensed, minds set for the ordeal ahead, the runners stampeded forward at the sound of the starting gun. In just over thirteen minutes, a cluster of gasping, bleary-eyed sportsmen collapsed across the finish line. Wondering what happened to those last tenths of a second, the harriers "walked off" their fatigue from the two and a half mile race. The cross country meet was over.

Transforming a herd of unconditioned boys into an organized team of non-stop sprinters was the task of Mr. William Christman, the new coach. From early September to the end of October, he instilled in team members the pleasure-pain of running. The team, consisting mainly of juniors, turned in a season record of three wins and five losses. Although graduation removes captains John Brandon and Tom Ferry, the great potential of the present Junior class, led by Dave Sheridan, promises a more successful season next fall.

HOCKEY

Haverford's hockeyettes smashed all forward lines to bring Haverford a 5-0-3 season record. A 1-1 tie with undefeated Springfield highlighted the season. Outstanding cooperation and hard work brought this year's team its great record. Co-captained by Cheryl Stewart and Patti Guest the hockeyettes defeated Upper Darby, adding one more point to the Cornog-Milne Trophy.

SOCCER

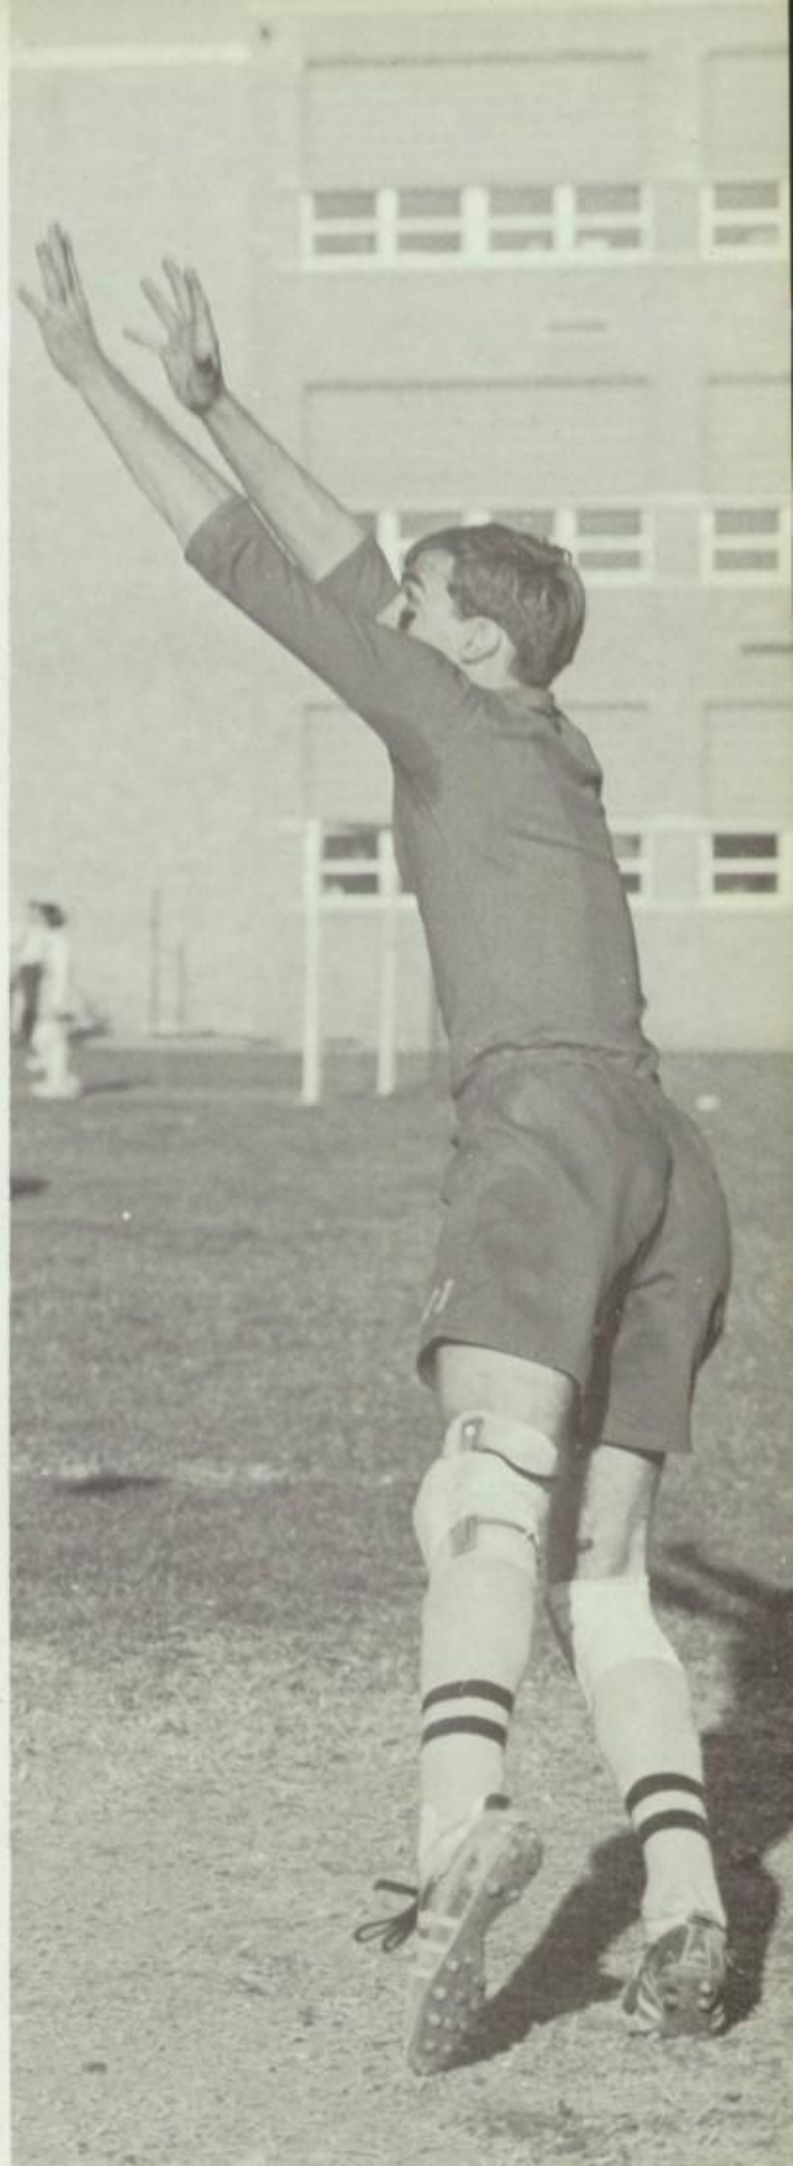

With only two returning lettermen, hopes for a truly successful soccer team this season were not very high. The booters, led by co-captains James Hodge and Brad Sinoff, surprised many by winning four of their first five games. Among these early victories was a 3-2 win over Lower Merion, the Northern Division champion.

Under the skilled direction of Coach Keyser, the team rose to its outstanding game of the season, a 3-1 upset over Springfield. Haverford was the only team to defeat the Southern Division champion.

Three ties and three losses balanced out the rest of the season to give the team a record of 7-3-3.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

With only co-captains Paul Shechtman and Bob Cabrelli left from last year's squad, the varsity basketball team went into the season as the decided underdog in almost all of its games. Coached by Mr. Stephen Juenger, the squad possessed speed and hustle but lacked the height to become a real threat in Suburban league competition.

The two high points of the season came against arch-rival Upper Darby with Haverford winning the first game 72-64 and then fighting the powerful Royals down to the final buzzer before losing 54-56 in their second encounter. Paul Shechtman, who was later named to the All-East Delco first team, led the Fords' attack in both games, scoring 32 and 23 points, respectively. The ten players returning next year, including guard Barry Walker and 6'4" center Jim Green, who led the team in rebounding, should make 1968 an exciting season for the Fords.

WRESTLING

"Pancake! Figure Four!" Sideline grapplers shouted strategy and encouragement to their comrade on the mat. This year's wrestlers made good use of the advice and went undefeated to cop the Suburban South Championship. Coach of the Year Donald Dyke led his team to individual and team honors including a second place team finish in the Christmas Tournament at State College and outstanding wrestler of the tournament honors for Tom Ferry. A gratifying 32-9 victory over arch-rival Upper Darby—the first in fifteen years—followed. Haverford then met undefeated Conestoga, overcoming them by a 25-16 score. The Fords closed out their regular season against a strong Springfield team. In a dramatic finish, senior Dan Recchiuti pinned his man to assure victory in a close meet.

Haverford then sent its wrestlers to the sectionals. Five grapplers—Ivan Bell, Steve Kutz, Jimmy Hodge, Jimmy Reynolds, and Dan Recchuiti—made it to the finals, but only Kutz survived. He then went to the districts at Upper Darby and again won. Steve was, however, defeated at the regionals by last year's state champion.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

In a pre-season scrimmage with Lower Merion, the Fordettes darted to a flash finish, 35-13, with the help of senior guard Kris Rapp. This triumph set the pace for a victorious 5-3 record climaxed by a suspenseful contest with Harriton, 36-32. In addition to co-captains Kris Rapp (the only returning letter-winner) and Cheryl Stewart, junior Kelly Passmore and sophomores Chris Buba, Bonnie Casey, Kathy Linehan, and Mary Bodo played on the starting varsity team. With such an exceptional lineup of under-class talent, Coach Miss Patricia Holmes anticipates an even better season for next year's cagers.

BOYS' SWIMMING

Haverford's mermen, performing at a disadvantage due to lack of a pool, ended the '66-'67 season with a 4-5 record. Highlights of the season were the defeat of Harriton and Cheltenham, with scores of 48-47 and 49-46 respectively.

New records were established with performances by sophomore Larry More in diving and senior Tim Bachman in the 200 yard individual medley. Junior George Starkweather holds records in the 100 yard backstroke, 200 yard and 400 yard free-style events, and 400 yard free-style relay, while the 400 yard relay team, Tim Bachman, Don Peoples, Dave Knopman, and Jim Shoemaker, surpassed all previous times.

With several letter-winners returning next year, Coach Bert Lynch looks forward to an even stronger season in '67-'68.

GIRLS' SWIMMING

Assisted by ninth graders for the first time in the team's history, Miss Valerie Walchak's mermaids topped last Year's record with a 7-3 season climaxed by an unprecedented victory over Abington, 58-19. Veteran swimmers Janice Walker and senior captain Dale Donovan competed in the District I swimming championships as did an all-sophomore relay team; in the same contest sophomore Sue Houseworth tied with two other girls for third place. Standout diver Meredith Prowell ranked sixth in the PIAA diving competition. A large and powerful reserve of underclass talent led by Cathy Woerner, a sophomore butterfly expert who was undefeated in league competition, should insure an excellent season for the next year.

VOLLEYBALL

A powerful offense, a superb defense, and an excellently conditioned team earned Haverford its second straight state volleyball championship. In the five year history of Haverford volleyball and in the thirty years of the state competition, this victory represented only the third win for a team from the East.

Led by co-captains Bud Hays and Brad Sinoff, the Fords powered their way through a seven-hour double elimination tournament, defeating Northeastern (Erie) 15-1, 15-4; Townville (Meadville) 15-4, 15-4, 15-7; and Tunkhannock (Scranton) 15-8, 13-15, and 15-4. In the finals, Haverford again triumphed over Tunkhannock 6-15, 15-12, and 15-11.

"O. K. Just meet the ball." Enthusiasm from the sidelines engulfed the field as Coach John Edelman's players came to bat. Youth and defense became the keynotes as the season progressed, with sophomore pitcher Val Erdmanis handling most of the mound work. Back-up help came from Mark Stauderman and Bob Croff. Offensively, first baseman Nick Zantopoulos, right-fielder Sam Glaser, and short-stop Barry Henry led in hitting, with centerfielder Don Pierce contributing the long ball. The Penncrest game, which Erdmanis won 2-1, was a typical game. Future seasons look even stronger as the underclassmen gain experience.

TRACK

Among its other innovations, the administration surprised the track team this spring with a sudden reversal of a long-standing policy: just prior to the first meet, the Athletic Department granted permission to the Fords to compete in both the javelin and discus events in home contests. Inexperience plagued the team at first; but sparked by the exceptional performance of transfer student Dwight Fowler, the field men, coached by Mr. Gerald Doemling, looked forward to success.

The track men also held their own in the running competition. Coaches William Christman and James Tidball had reason to be pleased as sprint men Chip Shearman and Bob Legnini and hurdlers Dave Charles and Tom Dolente burned up the track in their attempts to break the tape first. Dependable in every meet, record-holder Dave Sheridan led the field in the mile and half-mile runs. Rich Heimbecker and Steve Heller, along with highly successful 440, 880, and two-mile relay teams, provided pleasant surprises for coaches and spectators.

BOYS' TENNIS

Young and able, the 1967 tennis team stunned its opponents with forehand and backhand alike. Only two seniors—top man Mike Pierce and John Makransky — played varsity. Sophomores Frank Richardson and Jeff Wernick strengthened the team, and freshmen for the first time contributed their talents. The team got off to an exciting start with impressive victories over Marple-Newtown and Norristown and a tight match against Upper Darby which was decided by the final set in semi-darkness. The Fords concluded their season with another exciting match against Lower Merion.

GIRLS' TENNIS

Style and good form graced the courts as the girls' tennis team once more began play. With three returning letter winners, the girls, under the direction of Miss Joan Keylor, looked forward to a successful series of matches. Seasonal rains postponed three of the first five matches; however, after losing the opener to Marple-Newtown, the girls rallied to defeat Upper Darby 4-1 and add another point to the Cornog-Milne trophy. Senior captain Patti Guest and juniors Carol Cohen and Barbara Hersch handled the singles competition while seniors Barbara Bilker and Sue Dunn, juniors Betsy Fineberg, Carol Lee, and Barbara Richard, and sophomore Sue Barilotti faced doubles opponents.

GIRLS' LACROSSE

Rebounding from an early season slump with a revised line-up, the girls' lacrosse team decisively defeated Lower Merion and Radnor. A brilliantly played game next resulted in a tie with Abington. Coaches Valerie Walchak and Patricia Holmes began with a nucleus of seven returning letter winners, led by co-captains and leading scorers Dale Donovan and Janet Wismer. Senior Cheryl Stewart played a strong center, and Betty Bryant took care of the goalie chores. Meg Fisher played point, and sophomore Mary Bodo led the defense. The girls finished their season with strong games against Marple-Newtown and Nether Providence.

Pacing the high-scoring offense, senior attackmen Ken Leonard and Ed Sweeney contributed twenty goals in the opening contests. Midfielders Dave McKeever, Jim Ward, and Chip Miller lent cohesion to the Fords, while Rich Lawson anchored the defense. GOLF Excellent balance and depth throughout the schedule earned a second place finish for Haverford's golfers, behind perennial favorite Harriton. Senior Buddy Hays, completing three years of varsity play, spear-headed the team, which played its home matches at the world famous Merion West course. Freshman Buddy Marucci contributed his fairway skills; but number-one player Barry Feinberg, also in his third year of varsity competition, was sidelined early in the season with a severe knee injury. Graduation will deplete the ranks this year, but Coach Albert Gwinn's rebuilding efforts should provide more strong golf teams.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

"Hiram Scott 27, Princeton 24," flashed the board at the final buzzer. No, not college basketball, but one of many exciting, well-run games comprising this year's intramurals. Coordinating basketball in the winter with touch football in the fall and co-ed softball in the spring, Mr. John McGarvey created the most outstanding program that Haverford has seen in recent years. Use of the electric scoreboard, expanded time of play, and trophies for the champions highlighted seasons which rewarded the efforts of all participants.

CONVIVIALITY

SOCIAL LIFE

Planning and participating in the class plays, proms, and the All School Show, the students of Haverford contributed to a well-rounded program of fun and relaxation. For the first time seniors, juniors, and sophomores ventured on class trips, absorbing the grandeur of historic monuments along with the excitement of "Old Broadway." Whether it was "shootin' up the town" in the senior play or dancing to the dreamy music of the class proms, there was always a smile on every face!

Magic Of Bali Hai Enchants Juniors

Combining the elegance of a formal affair with the luxuriant atmosphere of the South Pacific, the 1966 Junior Prom provided an entertaining evening for 400 people. Amid the splendor of Bali Hai, with a jungle village and tropical flowers, Al Raymond and his Band supplied music for the dancing couples. The one-year reign of Peachy Hartman ended with the crowning of the new Prom queen, Cheryl Donato. Attending the Queen were members of the Court Patti Crawford, Lois Kessler, Linda Lewis, and Joan Wolf.

From one until five o'clock in the morning, the majority of the couples then attended the Post Prom at Williamson's Restaurant in the Presidential Apartments. There the Mark IV combo entertained the "all-night" set. Although sleepiness finally erased the magic of the Junior Prom, the memories lingered on.

SENIOR PLAY

Exuberant members of the Annie Get Your Gun troupe proved, undoubtedly, "There's No Business Like Show Business." The cast, headed by Wendy Brown as Annie Oakley and Steve Shapiro as Frank Butler, romped through three successive nights of hilarious fun highlighted by Irving Berlin's fantastic score. David Kagan, Sandi Martin, and Tim Shuba helped fill in supporting roles while Mr. H. Robert Shissler directed the smash musical.

Disregarding tradition, this show-stopping extravaganza played three performances, breaking all former attendance records.

The audiences sat enraptured as Annie tasted bits of happiness and sorrow in her campaign to lasso Frank, the man of her dreams. Her stubbornness complicated matters but set the stage for the surprise of a new Berlin number, "An Old-Fashioned Wedding."

Truly, Annie Get Your Gun, the bronco-buster of all times, scored a bull's-eye with enthusiastic audiences.

Autumn In New York

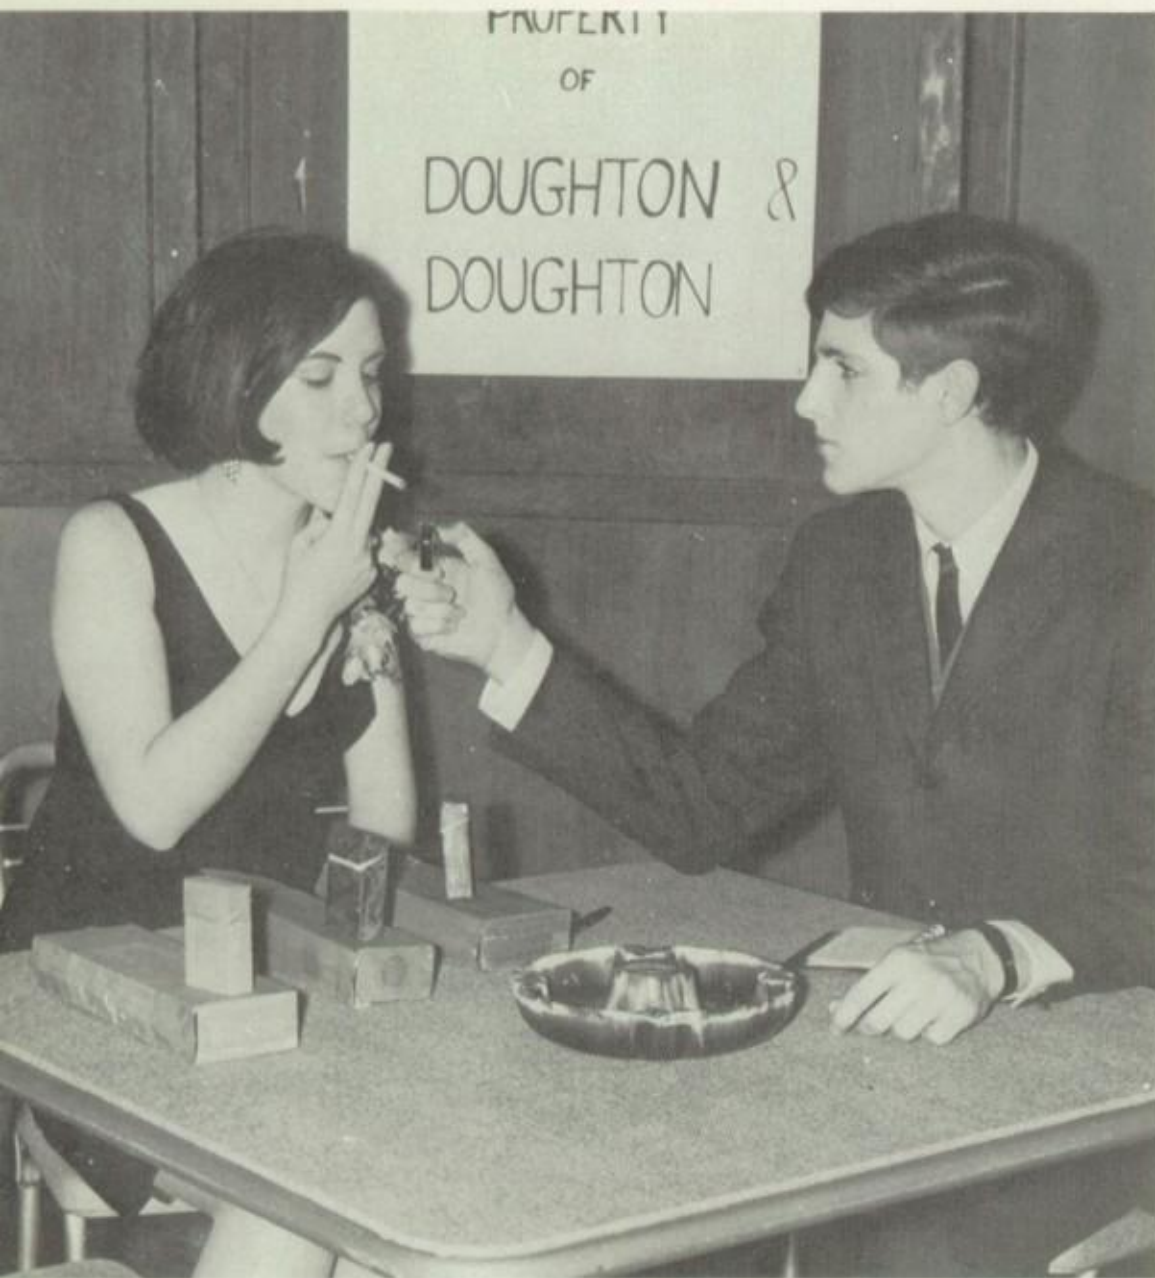

ASK ANY GIRL

The glamour and thrills in the life of a New York career-girl were brought to the Haverford stage on January 27 and 28 as the junior class presented Ask Any Girl, a three-act comedy written by Winifred Wolfe and dramatized by Christopher Sergel. Miss Beth Worthington sponsored the production, and Ray Benedetto took over as student director. All proceeds from the play went into the class treasury.

Ask Any Girl depicted the adventures of a small-town girl Meg Wheeler (Betsy Fineberg), who hoped to find fame, fortune, and a husband in New York City. In that bustling metropolis she met fun-loving playboy Evan Doughton (Tim Richards) and his serious, business-minded brother, Miles (Rich Flounders).

Arleen Pogue and Edna Goldstein added humor in their quaint roles as maiden aunts. Meg's parents were played by Joan Spivak and Brian Phipps.

The audience responded enthusiastically to the realization of every girl's dreams. Ask any girl.

Betsy Fineberg would rather switch — than fight with Rich Flounders.

Haverford's Max Factor, Mr. Donald Schlauch, meticulously prepares Peter Marsh for the Junior Play.

ALL SCHOOL SHOW

"Good grief, Charlie Brown, you're such a blah!" thus, on March 10 and 11, the 1967 All School Show, "Happiness Is . . ." Faculty sponsors Miss Anne Gilbert, Mrs. Laura Ulmer, Mr. John Scott, and Mr. William Wiley were aided in the production of the show by student directors Steve Shapiro, Linda Markowitz, and Richard Sedmak. Instrumentalists rehearsed under the direction of Gene Rubenstein; Jan Kleeman directed vocal acts while Anita Dowburd worked with dancers and Sandi Martin supervised novelty acts. Emcees Tim Shuba and Irene Stroup, as Charlie Brown and his inimitable advisor Lucy, kept the happiness moving throughout both evenings.

"Happiness" highlights included the Hazzard sisters' renditions of "I Think I'm Going Out of My Head" and "I'm on the Outside Lookin' In," the syncopated sound of jazz combo, The Cabelleros, the "now" beat of the Symptoms, and "The Baby Sister," a pantomime by Sandy Berman.

Underwater Rhapsody, Post Prom Climax Senior Social Life

"Underwater Rhapsody," sponsored by the senior class of 1967, provided a shimmering wonderland of entertainment for more than 650 people. Couples danced in the seascape gymnasium beneath a billowing canopy of blue streamers. Suspended ornamental fish, conch shells, and a pirate's treasure chest enhanced the marine motif. Sammy Moore's lively orchestra provided the proper musical background.

ASPIRATION

UNDERCLASSMEN

A whole new Haverford was born this September with the organization of new social and educational activities for the underclassmen. Establishing their own traditions, the class of 1969 initiated the first sophomore social "Cabaret" while juniors abandoned the usual prom in favor of a dinner-dance at the Falcon House. Both classes formed highly effective executive councils to plan social affairs, and assembly committees enabled each group to hold more regular and interesting assembly programs. Together, the two classes ended the year eagerly anticipating the responsibilities of future leadership.

SOPHOMORES

After a brief period of adjustment to one-way staircases, once-a-week homerooms, and opening exercises over the P.A. system, the Class of '69 quickly adapted to the new world of Senior High.

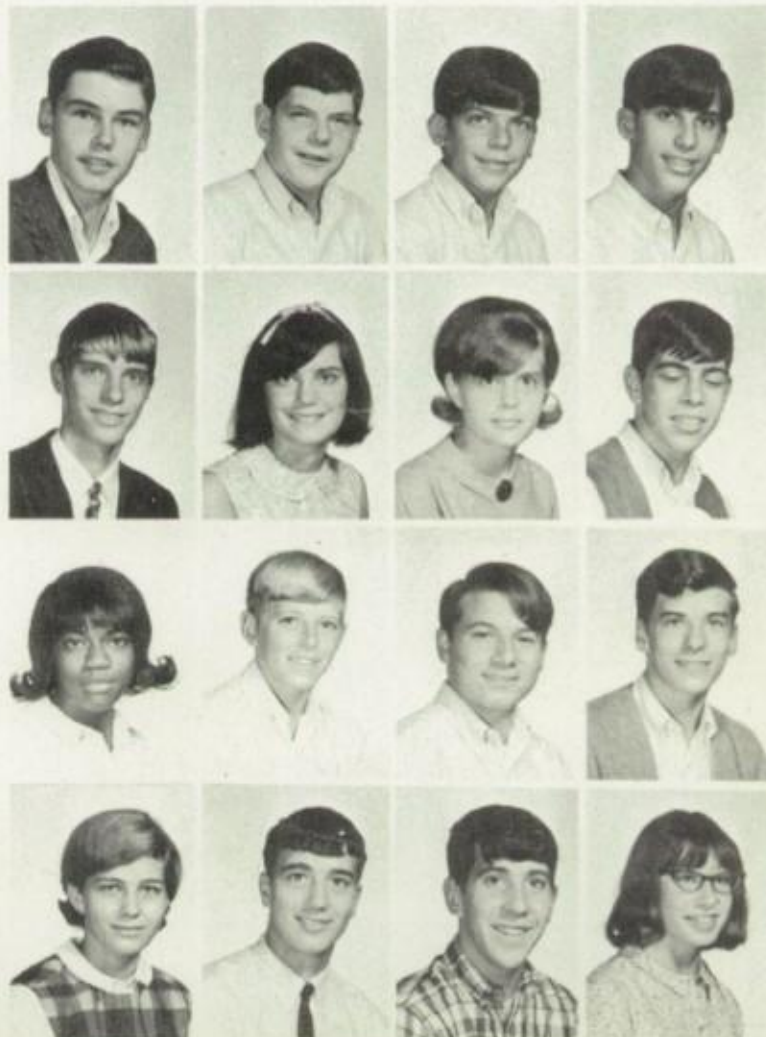

Academically, sophomores found a wide variety of courses from which to choose their curriculum. Socially, they were perhaps more active than any other previous tenth grade class. During the holiday season they sponsored the Christmas Ball. By putting their imaginations to work, the first sophomore Slave Day was originated — any sophomore was obligated to perform, for the nominal fee of $.50, any menial task, as directed by his master, a junior or senior. In the spring, they enjoyed the first semi-formal affair exclusively for sophs and their dates. Now fully integrated into school life, the Class of '69 looks forward to even more rewarding years as juniors and seniors.

Junior class Vice President Dave Hartman, President Barry Henry, Secretary Jim Robins and Treasurer Judy MacLaren pause in the sunshine.

JUNIORS

In its search for identity, each class always upholds at least one tradition — that of establishing new customs. The class of 1968 undoubtedly did its best to leave an imprint on school life. Besides continuing the tradition of a junior class play, it initiated the first junior class trip and substituted a dinner-dance for the junior prom. Looking forward to 1967-68, juniors anticipated the magic of their senior year.

REALIZATION

SENIORS

Challenged by the changing atmosphere of Haverford, the senior class initiated new activities and enlarged upon existing ones. As juniors, the class produced OUR HEARTS WERE YOUNG AND GAY, the first junior play in school history. ANNIE GET YOUR GUN, the senior dramatic presentation, brought the color and gaiety of a musical extravaganza to the Haverford stage. The seniors piloted the establishment of class executive committees to plan social activities. A bonfire, another innovation, climaxed a successful football season. On all fronts, the class of '67 dramatically created a fresh image of Haverford High, realizing past ambitions and gaining a clearer perspective of the things to come.

Awards From Merit Foundation And State

Awaiting a UN guide, newly arrived Haverford seniors find themselves among throngs of visitors from around the world.

Cruising around the island, Janelle Link contemplates the impressive skyline of Lower Manhattan.

Manhattan Absorbs Invading Seniors

On the first senior trip since 1941, 256 students descended upon New York City, May 10, 1967. The excursion, guided by Talmage Tours and sponsored by class advisors Mrs. Carolyn Fischer and Mr. Warren Brodt, included a visit to the United Nations Building in the morning and a drive through Greenwich Village in the evening. After lunching in small groups, over 200 seniors flocked to the St. James Theatre to see Hello Dolly. From the dizzying heights of the upper balcony, drama devotees eagerly watched the colorful extravaganza unfold below and applauded the acting of Martha Raye as Dolly Levi.

Forty other sightseeing seniors explored New York Harbor on the Circle Line Tour—a thirty-five mile trip around Manhattan Island. The Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty, the Brooklyn Bridge, the Queen Elizabeth, Grant's Tomb, and Yankee Stadium numbered among the famous landmarks seen.

Free time to shop and explore the city independently after dinner climaxed a memorable day for the upperclassmen.

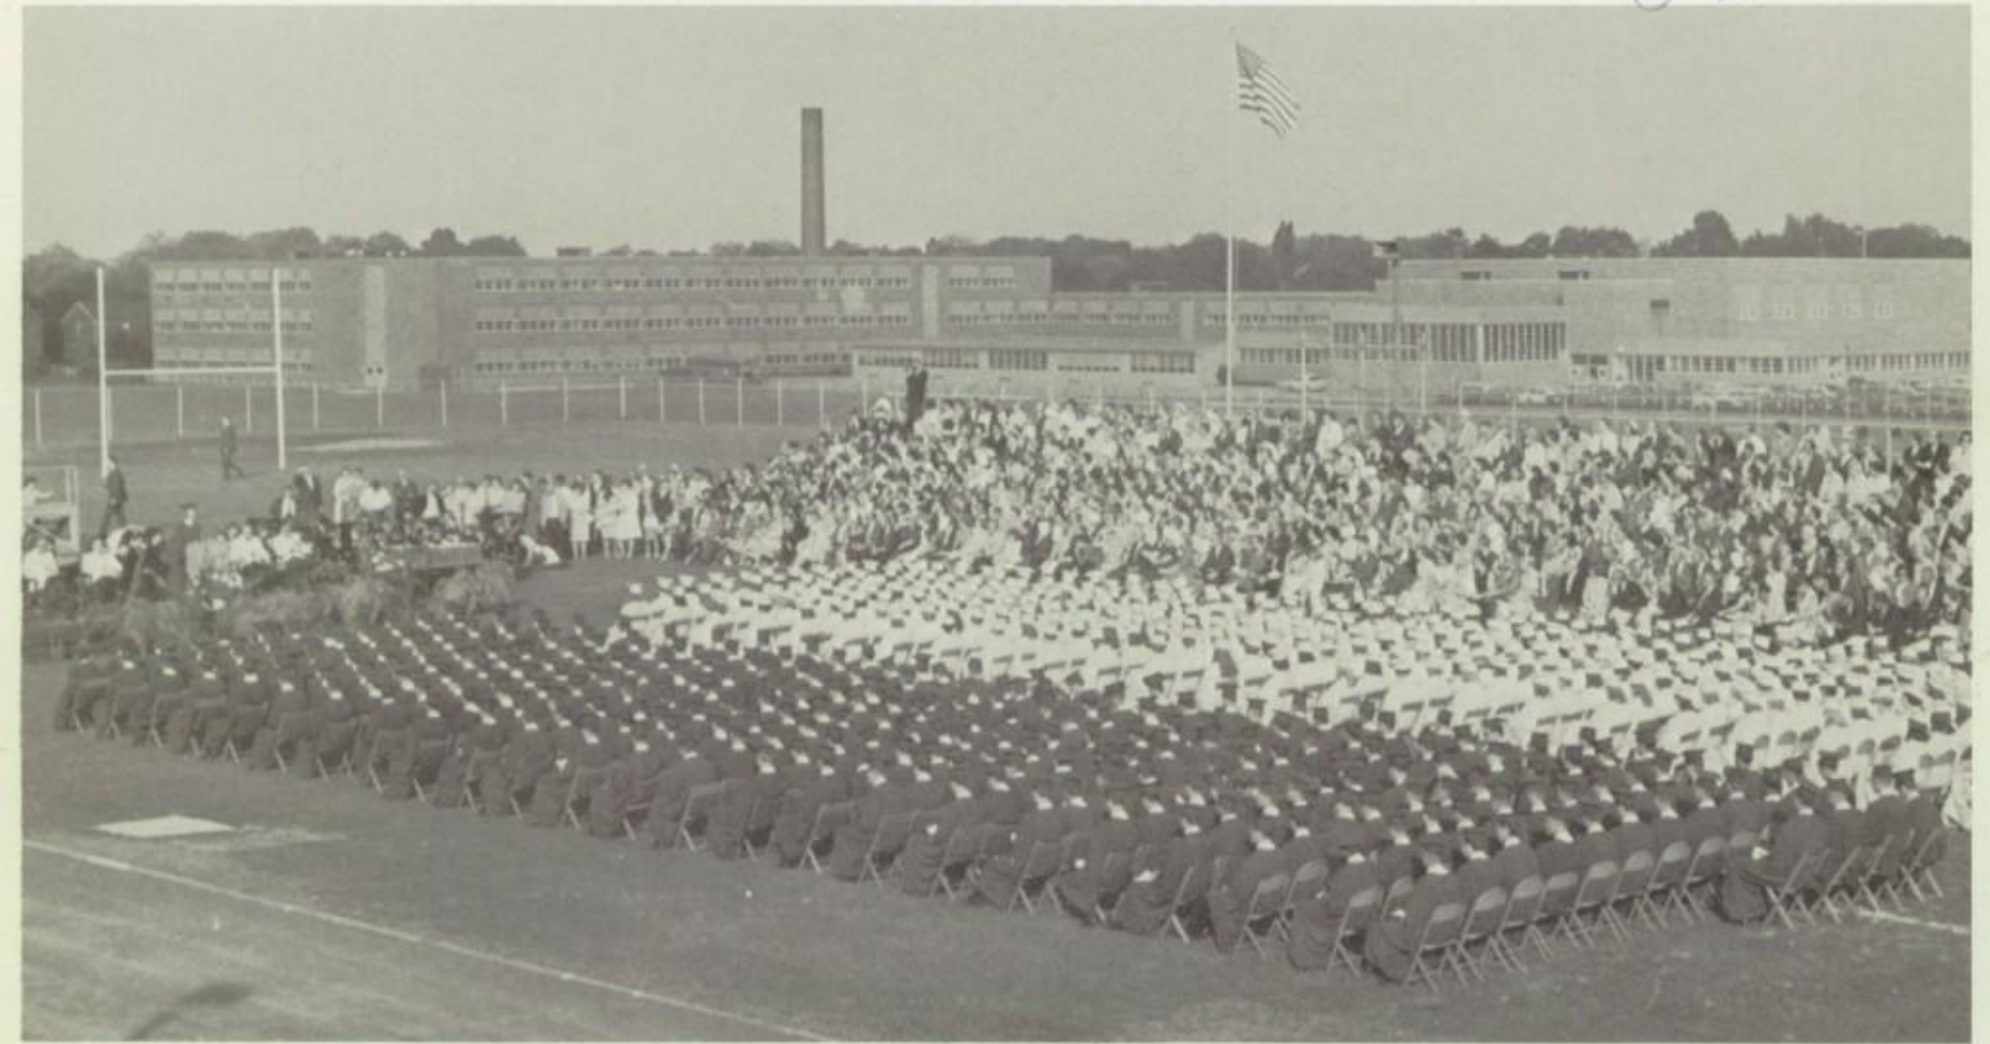

“Soon, All Too Soon,

Our School-day Joys Are Gone"

Dear Donna,
Good luck next year home,
a nice summer, etc.

"And Mem'ry Holds Us Close Eternally"

Dear Donna,
Our friendship has really grown since the year began, in
